BIGGEST SHIP SAFE IN N.Y.

BIG QUEEN SHIP HAILED IN N. Y.

NEW YORK, March 7 (INS)—Great Britain's 85,000-ton Queen Elizabeth, the newest and largest luxury liner afloat, penned an unparalleled chapter in maritime annals today by zigzagging across the mine-infested Atlantic to reach the safe and peaceful waters of New York.

Airplanes roared overhead and dipped in salute as the unfinished liner, which left its Clyde river basin on Feb. 26 and secretly navigated the Atlantic, avoiding enemy submarines and planes, unfurled the Union Jack in triumph from her stern shortly before she passed Ambrose light.

The deep secrecy that marked every step of its departure from war-torn Europe for a safe berth in peacetime America was maintained to the end.

No reporters were permitted to board the superliner as it moved up New York harbor and none was permitted on the Hudson river pier where the Queen Elizabeth will dock near its sister ship.

Britain 'Needed Queen's Berth'

LONDON, March 7 (INS)—British officials today answered German charges that the Queen Elizabeth had "bolted for safety" to New York waters.

The new luxury liner was sent across the ocean, it was said, "to make room for other ships."

"All English berths," a spokesman said, "are needed for other shipping."

The Queen Mary, which has been here since outbreak of the war.

The bluish-gray coat of the vessel, unrelieved by a single note of color, blended into the haze over the harbor. She looked like a ghost ship as she reached Quarantine and dropped anchor.

Having missed the morning slack tide, the Queen Elizabeth was to remain at Quarantine, to await a tide permitting her to tie up at pier 90 at the foot of 50th st.

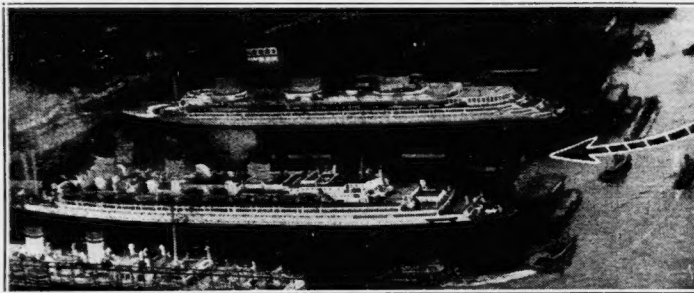

Unidentified escort vessels seen with her farther out were dropped somewhere in the lower bay, and the queen of the seas moved up the harbor alone in solitary majesty.

RESPONDS TO WELCOME

The first welcoming salutes came from a salvage and a press tug. The Queen Elizabeth responded with a throaty roar from her whistle and ran up the yellow quarantine flag.

No guns were evident. Her lifeboats, of which she did not carry a complete complement, were uncovered. Members of the crew and a number of stewards, their white

SWEDEN SEEKS ARMISTICE TO END FINN-SOVIET WAR

STOCKHOLM, March 7 (AP)—Sweden is seeking to arrange an armistice in the Russian-Finnish war, usually reliable sources said today, adding that Russian peace terms recently had been presented to Finland.

The exact nature of the terms is still the subject of speculation, but there were unconfirmed reports Russia demanded surrender of the Karelian isthmus, Viipuri, Lake Ladoga and part of the far northern Petsamo area.

An armistice, it was said, would be followed by further efforts to arrange a peace settlement.

Official Swedish circles said they could neither deny nor confirm reports that Sweden had submitted peace terms from Joseph Stalin to the Helsinki government.

BERLIN INTERESTED

One theory was that negotiations thus far had proceeded through the Russian minister to Sweden, Mme. Alexandra Kolontay, the Finnish minister here Elias Erkkio, who is former Finnish foreign minister, and the Swedish foreign office.

Significance also is seen in reports that Dr. Juho Paasikivi, Finnish diplomat, is in Stockholm. He headed the Finnish delegation in unsuccessful prewar negotiations at Moscow on Russian territorial demand which Finland found a threat to her independence.

If peace negotiations are actually under way, Scandinavian political quarters assume that Berlin also is interested.

There are unconfirmed reports even that the German minister to Finland, Dr. Wipert von Blucher, has conferred in Helsinki with a representative of the Finnish government, Baron Carl Gustaf Mannerheim, and other Finnish officials.

SWEDEN 'ON SPOT'

Sweden's interest in any peace negotiations is believed to have been prompted by the increasingly difficult position of this country in view of her stated policy as regards passage of foreign aid to Finland and new reports that Finland is considering an appeal directly to the western powers for military assistance.

As for Germany, it has become the popular view that the Reich would be ready to intervene as soon as Russia gained some outstanding military success in Finland.

Reported conversations in Berlin between the noted Swedish explorer, Sven Hedin, and Adolf Hitler and his foreign minister, Joachim von Ribbentrop, are regarded by many observers as directly associated with the supposed German-Swedish interest in seeing the war in Finland settled.

REDS SHOW ANGER

Doubt was expressed in some informed circles, however, whether

Conway's Demand For Connolly Cash Related by Aides

William T. Conway, on trial with former Clerk of Suffolk Superior Civil Courts John Patrick Connolly on charges of conspiracy and extortion, was named by two witnesses today as having demanded and received money from them for Connolly.

John E. Noonan, $2300-a-year docket clerk under Connolly, testified Conway collected a "contribution" of $300 from him and asked him to "see some of the other boys in the office."

"I told him that was out, I wouldn't do it," Noonan said today on the witness stand.

"DO IT OR NO JOB?"

"Mr. Conway told me, 'If the clerk (Connolly) says for you to do it, you'll do it, or you'll be out of a job.'"

"I said, 'All right then; I'll be out of a job.'"

An earlier witness today, Edward J. Kelley, for 15 years an employee of the clerk's office, testified Conway told him he'd have to give $300 to help defray Connolly's 1936 campaign expenses.

When Kelley said he didn't have that much money and didn't know how he could get it, Conway warned him he'd "have to get it," Kelley told Judge George F. Leary and the locked-up Suffolk Superior Criminal Court jury trying Conway and Connolly.

HANDLED OVER $300

Kelley testified he handed the $300 over to Conway in an envelope. He said the "contribution" was later acknowledged personally by Connolly.

Connolly said the $300 would be deducted from the money Kelley would be asked to contribute for the 1940 campaign, Kelley told the court.

Noonan, next witness after Kelley, testified he is 33 years old and has been employed in the clerk's office for more than 15 years.

Questioned by Asst. Dist. Atty. Frederick T. Doyle, Noonan said he had known Conway for four or five years before Connolly was elected clerk of courts in 1936.

PHONED FOR HIM

After Connolly took the post, Conway was in the main office or Connolly's private office at least once a day, Noonan testified.

Q—In January, 1937, did you go to Mr. Connolly's private office? A—Yes, after I received a telephone call.

Q—Who was there? A—Mr. Connolly and Mr. Conway.

Q—What was said? A—I said, "Do you want to see me, Mr. Clerk?" Mr. Connolly said, "No, Bill does." I looked over to Mr. Conway. He said, "I'll see you after 5 o'clock, outside."

Q—Did you see him at that time? What happened then? A—I met Mr. Conway as he told me. He said to me, "You've got a good job in there." I said, "I think so." He said, "Would you

The cargoes of eight others, totalling about 100,000 tons, were ordered unloaded yesterday. Another was released because it sailed March 1, before the blockade deadline.

Nazis Ridicule Liner's "Flight"

BERLIN, March 7 (INS)—German press and officialdom ridiculed Great Britain today for the "disgraceful flight" of its newest luxury liner, the Queen Elizabeth, to New York. Authoritative spokesmen said they could see nothing courageous in the 85,000-ton liner's dash across the Atlantic.

"The biggest sea power in the world apparently no longer can offer its own ship a safe harbor," the newspaper Nachtausgabe said.

"The English have carried an unfinished tug across the Atlantic in a great hurry as though they were afraid to keep it in England any longer," a Wilhelmstrasse spokesman said.

"It is remarkable how much English treasure in the form of historical documents (apparently a reference to the copy of the Magna Charta now in Washington) liners, gold and art is being taken to America for safe-keeping."

"The English don't feel sure of themselves any more. Why don't they leave the ship in English waters if they are confident of victory?"

"The Queen Elizabeth's furtive ten-day flight, apparently with makeshift engines, lights out and guarded by destroyers, seems to contradict Churchill's claim that the U-boat danger has ended."

This was a reference to the speech of British First Lord of the Admiralty Winston Churchill in which he told of British "successes" against German submarines.

Another commentator said: "What is the Queen Elizabeth, anyway? It is not even finished. In fact, it is half a skeleton. Now, the Bremen—that was something!"

(They referred to the German liner Bremen's dash last fall from New York to Murmansk, Russia, and subsequent run home through the British blockade.)

NUNS RESCUE 200 IN CHELSEA BLAZE

Marching as though in a fire drill, 200 children were led to safety by nuns at St. Rose's parochial school, Spencer ave., Chelsea, today when fire broke out in the basement of the structure.

The blaze started in a pile of rubbish. Smoke rose through the staircases. Nuns detected the smoke and quickly sounded the fire drill alarm.

Many of the children were unaware of a real fire as they were lined up and marched from their classrooms, but when fire engines arrived they realized it had been more than a fire drill.

The fire was quickly brought under control. The flames gave off heavy smoke, but did not get into the partitions.

Light snow was falling at the time, but the nuns got the children into their outer garments quickly, and the 200 pupils filed down the stairs and to the streets as in their regular drills.

Word of the fire spread rapidly and anxious parents ran to the scene. They were calmed, however, as soon as they saw the long lines of laughing faces lined up class by class along the sidewalks.

Sisters Virginia, Cecile, Mary Justin and Rosita praised the children for their calm and orderliness. All classes were dismissed until the afternoon session. Sister Mary Justin had thrown blazing rubbish out of the basement when firemen arrived.

Dr. Finley, Former Times Editor, Dies

NEW YORK, March 7 (INS)—Dr. John H. Finley, 76-year-old editor emeritus of the New York Times, died of a heart attack in his home today.

Educator and author, as well as one of the nation's most-renowned editors, Dr. Finley was born in Grand Ridge, Ill.

The verdict, returned sealed by the jury last night and opened today before Judge Allen G. Buttrick, awarded her $550 for one assault she alleged had been committed on her by the dentist and $200 for another.

She had testified that Dr. Winchester punched her in a taxicab in March, 1937, and the following day punched her again in a Back Bay doctor's office, where the dentist had taken her for treatment of an ear injured by the first punch.

Dr. Winchester, however, asserted that the girl had fallen and injured herself while getting into the taxicab.

Dr. Winchester Awarded $750 Damages

The dentist was described as a "vicious type" in arguments by Atty. Edward H. Flavin, representing Miss Curley.

"She went out with what she supposed was a gentleman," Atty. Flavin said. "If she had known the vicious type he was, she would not have gone out with him."

"There may be excuses for weaknesses of the flesh, but there is no excuse for a man striking a woman."

The arguments followed testimony of Dr. Winchester himself, who denied assaulting Miss Curley and who gave a different version of incidents which she had described on the stand last Tuesday.

Dr. Winchester testified Miss Curley had suffered her ear injury when she fell while getting into a taxicab, and that on the following day, when he took her to an ear specialist, he had slapped her lightly or the cheek while they were joking with each other concerning their respective occupations.

Newton 'Perfect Bridge Hand' Doesn't Count

A perfect hand of bridge, which was never played, was dealt to Mrs. Mary O'Connell of West Newton, last night at a bridge party conducted by the Catholic Women's Club of West Newton.

Playing with Mrs. O'Connell were Miss Dolly McKilany, her partner, and the dealer was Mrs. Catherine Hannon who was playing with Mrs. Margaret Edwards, all of Newton.

When Mrs. O'Connell picked up her hand and found she held the 13 spades she was so overcome that she threw in the cards with an exclamation that she held the perfect hand. The cards were tabled and the hand didn't count. The hand was then dealt over again.

TEACHER IN FLAG OUSTER TO FIGHT

Displaying no emotion, but with some of her pupils and teacher associates nearly in tears, Miss Elizabeth M. Graham, suspended Quincy school teacher, gathered her personal effects today in her classroom and departed the Daniel Webster school.

At a meeting of the Quincy school board last night, Miss Graham, a third-grade instructor, was ordered suspended for her alleged refusal to join with pupils in the classroom salute to the flag.

Her pet canary was unfed today at her home, from where she had been absent all night, according to neighbors, but shortly after 8 a. m. Miss Graham appeared at the school in Quincy Point.

WILL GET HEARING

Awaiting her was Police Sgt. James J. Mullen, who served upon her the notice of suspension forwarded by School Supt. James N. Muir and who also notified her that she had the right of a public hearing.

Such a hearing would be held, she was told, on April 17. She told the police sergeant she would avail herself of the hearing.

Then she gathered up her personal effects and her books in the classroom, bade those who were around a brief goodbye and departed in the automobile of unidentified friends, declining to talk with the press.

Then behind the desk relinquished by Miss Graham went Miss Barbara DeWolf, a substitute teacher, and the pupils scuffled in, took their seats and the business of studying was picked up.

PLAN COURT BATTLE

Earlier, Miss Graham had declared that she would fight the action of the school board in suspending her for the rest of the year for her refusal to salute the flag.

"Saluting the flag is incompatible with my religious beliefs," she said. "I will fight this case to the highest court and remain true to my principles, even though it costs me my job."

Rushing to her aid was Gordon H. Walker of Milton, head of Jehovah's Witnesses in Quincy and the group to which the Quincy school teacher belongs.

"We won't take this sitting down," Walker said. "I and my organization will seek redress for Miss Graham through every court in the land."

N. H. Flier Rescues Woman From Wilds

SO. END IN WAR ON RUM SHOPS

The Silversteins—father and son—ran into quite something today before the Boston Licensing Board when they sought to have a package store liquor license transferred in the South End from Sheffield Markets, Inc. in Massachusetts ave., to a location around the corner in Tremont st.

There was a veritable deluge of protesters, with nobody appearing in support of the Silversteins—Israel Silverstein, senior, and junior—with Thomas Turley of Union Park furnishing an embarrassing moment for the son.

Turley, an official of the South End Planning Board, questioned the younger Silversteins after he had told the board he intended managing the new package store.

"Where do you live?" asked Turley. "Oh, I live in a residential district," young Silverstein replied. Turley's face reddened and he shot back:

"Did it ever occur to you that the South End is residential? Why don't you take your license out where you live? What for you know it or not, the South End is a residential district."

There was a burst of applause from those in the jammed hearing room.

Mouse Causes Blast Making 1000 Idle

LOCKPORT, N. Y., March 7 (AP)—A mouse caused an explosion today which threw approximately 1000 employees of the Harrison radiator division of General Motors out of work for the day.

The mouse caused a short circuit in an electric control panel which resulted in the explosion of a gas mixing apparatus. The mouse was the only fatality.

After waiting two days for a storm to abate, West decided to delay no longer and took off in his ski-equipped plane for the home of Mrs. Albert Desmoulin, 42, on the shores of Lake Parmachenee—in northwestern Maine, 24 miles from the nearest highway.

West experienced considerable difficulty on the way up due to the storm but finally got his plane down on the lake.

With the help of the woman's husband, he stamped down the snow in front of the Desmoulin home with snowshoes so that the plane could taxi to the door. The woman was then carried to the plane and placed in a seat where she remained motionless in a half-sitting, half-lying position until she was removed at the Berlin airport and taken to a hospital in an ambulance. She suffered an internal hemorrhage two days ago and every precaution was taken to prevent a recurrence.

On Tuesday night, Dr. Edward R. S. McGee flew to Parmachenee with West and treated the woman. She showed improvement yesterday but Dr. McGee deemed it best she be taken to a hospital.

Suicide Bullet Kills Slayer

SAN FRANCISCO, March 7 (AP)

—Leo Ignoff, 35, died shortly before midnight from a bullet he fired into his head yesterday after fatally wounding Mrs. Vera Frederick, 28, in a downtown street.

Mrs. Frederick, an expectant mother and wife of an auto mechanic, was shot before scores of horrified home-going workers.

Police Lieut. Mike Mitchell said Ignoff walked up to her and showed her a citation for disturbing the peace, mailed to Ignoff after she had complained of his attentions. In the other hand he held a pistol.

Mrs. Frederick dodged into an office building as Ignoff began firing, but was trapped in a hallway. She died with a bullet in her back and two in her head.

HUNT CAMBRIDGE 'DEATH CAB' THIEF

Cambridge and Metropolitan police today appealed for help in their search for a black "death cab" which sped away after Russell Matheson, 39, its owner, was fatally crushed attempting to halt the stolen machine.

By radio and teletype, officers investigating Matheson's death requested police throughout eastern Massachusetts to watch for the taxicab, a black Packard sedan which carried Massachusetts plates numbered 616,050.

In cream lettering, the name of the Central Taxi Company was painted on the side of the machine. Matheson was a part owner of the firm.

It was last seen in Memorial Drive, Cambridge, heading toward Cottage Farm bridge.

Sealed in another of the company's cars, Matheson and John Sullivan, 18, of Columbia st., Cambridge, a newboy, first saw the large car move out of its stall in Central sq. operated by a stranger with a green hat.

GIVES CHASE

Matheson, according to Sullivan's story gave chase down Massachusetts ave. toward the Harvard bridge, Sullivan with him.

Both machines nearly crashed as they swung into Memorial Drive, in front of Massachusetts Institute of Technology dormitories.

Forcing the first car to the curb, Matheson gave the wheel to Sullivan and attempted to leap on the running board of the pursued auto. Suddenly the car lurched across the reservation in the center of the boulevard, sidwiped a tree, then sped away. Matheson was crushed between the auto and tree. Matheson, unmarried, lived with his father, Henry Matheson, in Western ave., Cambridge. The father suffering a heart ailment, collapsed at the news of his son's death and today was reported in critical condition.

DEATH MYSTERY CLEARED

FALL RIVER, March 7—Dist. Atty. William G. Crossley today exploded the mystery in the death of Mrs. Minnie Hathaway, 43, of Assonet, and declared that she died from natural causes.

No poison was found in her vital organs, according to reports made to the Bristol County prosecutor by Medical Examiner Thomas E. Boylan and State Chemist Joseph T. Walker.

CALL CASE CLOSED

From their reports, and a report by Dr. Allan Moritz, head of the medical legal department at Harvard, the district attorney is satisfied, he said, that Mrs. Hathaway died on Feb. 29 from uremia poisoning as the result of a kidney ailment.

So far as her death is concerned, the case is closed, but Agent John F. Hallahan of the Massachusetts Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Children is still investigating. It is understood, relative to the home life of the daughter, Lorraine, 14.

Lorraine is still living with her 62-year-old father, Charles Hathaway, in a farmhouse in Assonet and attends the seventh grade at the Assonet school.

Investigators of the M. S. P. C. C. have been endeavoring to trace down stories, they have said, that Lorraine went through a mock marriage ceremony with an Assonet man.

GIRL DENIES STORY

Asked about the mock marriage, Hathaway is said to have replied: "I don't know anything about it. You'll have to ask Lorraine. She runs her own affairs."

The girl, however, denied the stories and also that she had ever worn or displayed a wedding ring.

Judge Manton Goes to Jail

With him was his son, David, who yesterday provided the check for Manton's $10,000 fine, and his counsel, Edmund Donald Wilson, once his law clerk.

Reporters gathered around Manton. He greeted those whom he knew, but said only:

Divorce Ruling Due For Betsey, Jimmy

BETSEY ROOSEVELT Presses Divorce

LOS ANGELES, March 7 (AP)—Mrs. Betsey Cushing Roosevelt goes to court today to learn whether Superior Judge Thomas C. Gould will grant her a divorce from James Roosevelt, the President's son. Evidence in the case is completed.

Mrs. Roosevelt, who charged cruelty and desertion, testified Friday her husband had asked her in May, 1933, to obtain a divorce. She refused, she said, and followed him to Hollywood the following November, when he again told her he wanted his freedom "and asked me to leave California."

Henry K. Cushing, Mrs. Roosevelt's brother and her corroborating witness, was too ill to testify. The hearing was twice postponed. He completed a deposition today in which he said of his sister:

"Her attitude was one of great mental distress. She had no desire for a divorce."

Cushing said James Roosevelt had not lived with his wife since November, 1933.

A property settlement reached out of court gives Mrs. Roosevelt $65,000, with the choice of an additional $50,000 in five years, or $500 annually until she remarries.

Roosevelt agreed to provide $167.50 a month for each of their children, Sara Delano, 7, and Kate, 4, until they are 21, then $250 a month until they are 21.

The President's son filed the first suit, Feb. 15, charging desertion, but Mrs. Roosevelt countered with her cross-complaint five days later.

Blizzard Traps Auto Offender

J. Elwyn Wright, 50, president of the New England Fellowship, with offices in Park st., lost a battle with the law today and was given six months' probation when arraigned in Municipal Court charged with operating an automobile without insurance.

Wright contended his legal address was in New Hampshire, and for that reason he registered his car there. Police showed, however, that for two years he had been listed at an Addington rd., Brookline, address.

Wright's trouble started during the recent blizzard. His car was stuck in the snow in Park st. and ploughs could not clear the street.

Patrolman Thomas Hassey finally located Wright and asked to see his license and registration. He discovered that Wright had none of the insurance required by law in this state.

He was given six months' probation with the condition that he register his car in this state immediately.

Public Employees Boost U. S. Tax

WASHINGTON, March 7 (AP)—Federal tax experts calculated today that income taxes this year from state and local government employees might run two to three times as high as the $16,000,000 previously forecast.

Under a new law, the estimated $3,600,000,000 salaries of about 2,600,000 state and local workers will be subject to federal tax.

Because the average of these salaries was low, particularly in the case of rural school teachers, the tax yield of the new law was not expected to be large.

Experts are revising their estimates on the assumption that a large number of state and local officials have private incomes as well which formerly escaped federal taxation.

Boston Handbill Law Held Void

A city ordinance prohibiting distribution of handbills was ruled unconstitutional in municipal court today by Judge Elijah Adlow.

The ruling came in the case of Jacob Birkiwetz of Myrtle st., West End, arrested today in front of the welfare building in Blossom st. while passing out handbills for the Workers' Alliance.

Patrolman William Carnes made the arrest and took Birkiwetz directly to court.

Atty. Nathan Greenberg appeared for the man and asked that the charge be quashed on the grounds the ordinance deprived the defendant of his constitutional rights "without due process of law."

Judge Adlow refused to quash the charge on those grounds, but dismissed the case as the result of a recent United States Supreme Court ruling in a Worcester case.

Gala Program Ready For Evacuation Day

A colorful "Pageant of Americanism" will be held in South Boston, March 10-17, furnishing the theme of the Evacuation Day celebration, which marks the 164th anniversary of the departure of British troops from Boston.

A full week of activity has been planned by a joint committee appointed by Chief Marshal Edward J. McCormack and the South Boston Citizens' Association, set to start with flag raising ceremonies at the Kearsarge Veterans Monument, Marine Park, Sunday, and concluding with the annual parade the following Saturday.

Historical exercises will also be held Sunday night at South Boston high school, with Hon. Charles S. O'Connor, clerk of the Supreme Judicial Court, as the main orator.

The Michael J. Perkins Post, American Legion Band, three times winner of national honors at the American Legion convention, and the championship drill team of the Newton Post, American Legion, will stage a demonstration Monday night.

Sports activities and an "Irish Night" have been planned by the committee for Tuesday and Wednesday, and on Thursday the annual Evacuation Day dinner, attended by Gov. Saltonstall, Mayor Tobin, State Treasurer William Hurley, Atty.-Gen. Paul Dever and Postmaster Tague, will be held at the Hotel Westminister.

A horrible parade, the first ever held in South Boston, and a fireworks display at Columbus Park, feature Friday night's entertainment.

More than 150 military, naval and veterans' organizations will be represented in the annual Evacuation Day parade Saturday.

Before the parade there will be a novice road race conducted by the park department. Following memorial exercises in honor of the men who built the redoubts on Dorchester Heights, at which Sen. John E. Kerrigan will be the main speaker, planes from Squantum will stage an aerial demonstration.

Norton Paging Constituents

Leave it to Clem Norton, first citizen of Hyde Park, to think up a new one. City councilor from Ward 18 and a member of the school committee, today he added a new one to the book of politics.

"Since my election to the school committee," he said, "there has been a falling off of calls from my constituents seeking my services."

"I don't like that. My friends elected me to do things for them, and I want them to call on me. I wish the newspapers would announce that a penny postcard addressed to Clem Norton, Hyde Park will get me, and I'll make a personal call on one and all. I want something to do."

There was a noticeable lack of enthusiasm by other members of the city council when informed of Norton's latest.

Anti-War Candidates Beaten in Britain

LONDON, March 7 (AP)—The tabulation in a by-election in the Kettering constituency showed today that J. D. Profumo, Conservative and been returned to the House of Commons, defeating W. Ross, an "anti-war" candidate, 17,914 to 6616.

HOSPITAL HEADS IN CONCLAVE

Hundreds of hospital executives gathered here today for the opening of the three-day annual sessions of the New England Hospital Association at Hotel Statler.

In opening the conference, Warren F. Cook, president of the association and administrator of the Deaconess Hospital, declared that new developments in the hospital field throughout the nation have been given an added impetus by the recent legislation introduced in Congress.

"The continued low return on invested funds makes the problem of providing hospital care more acute than ever," he told leading hospital administrators and trustees in this area.

"New drugs and procedures are constantly being introduced for the treatment of patients. To keep abreast of these developments we meet and exchange views and ideas which have been found practical and usable in our hospitals."

Among the noted medical men to address the conference is Dr. Frank Walker of the Commonwealth Fund of New York, who will discuss the co-operation of the community hospital with the public health agencies.

$12,000 in Snow Cash Unclaimed

Although city authorities have denied indignantly any raid, on the city treasury by snow shovelers, more than 650 checks, totalling $12,000, still were unclaimed today for labor during the St. Valentine's Day blizzard.

At the same time, officials announced that about $150,000 will be ready for final payment Saturday to 6100 workers for the second week of work in clearing Boston streets.

Strict check on any of the 650 persons who have not claimed last week's pay will be made on their attempts to collect. It was announced by George C. Hyland, commissioner of public works.

The last 240 emergency employees were laid off last night.

REDS RENEW DRIVE ON CENTER OF LINE

By PETER DE HEMMER GUDME

International News Service Special Correspondent
HELSINKI, March 7—Suffering tremendous losses as they recklessly exposed themselves to machine gun and bombs on the open ice, Russian forces today resumed their drive across frozen Viipuri bay and at the same time reopened an offensive against the center of the Mannerheim Line.

Finnish reports said the unprotected Russians were beaten off in every attempt to complete the occupation of Viipuri by crossing on the ice.

At least 100 cumbersome tanks

(fell through the ice, which was pitted by Finnish artillery shells and aerial bombs, while the Russian infantry was forced to march without protection across the flat ice straight into Finnish machine gun fire.

To meet the new Russian drives, Finland called into active service the military class of 1920—youths of 20—who originally were scheduled to report for their initial training this summer.

Finland has avoided haste in conscripting its youth, but a large proportion volunteered early in the war.

Today's renewed assault on the center of the Mannerheim line was the first major attack there in a week and reveals that the Russians are not satisfied with their break through the line on the extreme west, forming a narrow "Thermopylae" corridor leading to Viborg.

Great holes in the ice of Viipuri bay told how the Russian attacks were beaten off.

French Navy Claims 12 Nazi U-Boats Sunk

PARIS, March 7 (AP)—The French navy has sunk 12 German submarines, captured 18,000 tons of German shipping and, with the British navy, has broken the back of Germany's threat to block the sea-lanes, Navy Minister Cesar Campinchi declared today.

(British sources have reported that the two allied navies have destroyed a total of about 50 submarines.)

BRITAIN'S AIR FORCE DOUBLED

LONDON, March 7 (AP)—The Royal Air Force in a day of brisk activity at home and abroad today shot down a German air raider off Scotland, announced the successful scouting of strategic German bases and cities during the night and went to the House of Commons for more money.

Two German warplanes also fought with British pursuit planes off the east coast of England to-night.

Onlookers saw one raider almost collide with a British plane as the fight in the clouds began.

In a few minutes a second raider with two British fighters in pursuit appeared. Then came three more British planes and the two Germans "were driven out to sea," the onlookers said.

SECRET AMOUNT

How much money is to be spent for the air force is a war secret—hidden behind a £100 ($400) "token" appropriation—but Sir Kingsley Wood, the air minister, told Commons it involved "the greatest expenditure of the kind in British history."

Sir Kingsley reported that the fighting strength of the air force had been doubled in 12 months and said the allied output of aircraft now was greater than Germany's.

In surveying the air war to date he said 44 German aircraft had been brought down around British coasts "without a single loss on our side" and many more had been forced down in neutral territory or upon the sea.

Today's Nazi victim flew over Aberdeenshire. Anti-aircraft batteries opened fire and fighting planes took off on what proved to be a successful chase.

Chamberlain Wins In Palestine Test

LONDON, March 7 (INS)—A combined laborite-liberal attempt to unseat the government of Prime Minister Chamberlain for restricting Jewish land purchases in Palestine, was defeated in the House of Commons.

By a vote of 262 to 121, the House rejected a motion of censure on the Palestine issue which, if passed, would have caused removal of the premier and his cabinet in favor of other choices.

The motion was the first of its kind to be introduced in Commons since outbreak of the war. It was opposed by Laborite leaders and supported by many opposition Liberals.

Colonial Secretary Malcolm MacDonald, answering bitter attacks on the government's Palestine policies, said the restriction of land sales to Jews in certain parts of the Holy Land was caused by fears of "very grave repercussions throughout the Arab world."

Although he denied Britain gave way to Arab pressure and insisted the land regulations were a necessary war-time measure, MacDonald declared:

"His Majesty's government has received some very stern warnings from Palestine in recent weeks of growing suspicion that Britain is insincere.

"These warnings said that if the situation were not alleviated, it might have very grave repercussions throughout the Arab world."

any mediation bid from a Scandinavian country had a reasonable chance of success.

These sources believed the Kremlin to have become embittered over admitted Scandinavian sympathies for Finland to such a point that a mediator's role would be difficult. The Finnish attitude toward negotiations was regarded as questionable, depending on the Finns' opinion of their chances of continuing their defense.

BERLIN, March 7 (AP)—Authorized German sources said today that Germany never had left any doubt that it regarded passage of volunteers through Sweden to Finland as a hostile act—not against Germany but against the principle of neutrality.

They expressed doubt of the authenticity of reports that peace terms had been transmitted from Soviet Russia to Finland.

EVENING AMERICAN, THURSDAY, MARCH 7, 1940

jackets emphasized against the dull background, waver from the rails.

As she reached quarantine several planes, including a police amphibian, soared overhead, and numerous harbor craft circled around the vessel, which rode high in the water.

Cunard-White Star line officials, owners of the 1030-foot sea queen, stated that Capt. J. C. Townley, who piloted the ship on its perilous maiden voyage, unprecedented in maritime history, would make no public statement.

Line officials also remained silent concerning the number aboard the liner although it was generally understood it carried no passengers but possibly a few English technical experts.

THOUSANDS CHEER HER

Whistles of harbor tugboats escorted a cheery welcome to the gray, sleek liner, whose interior remains unfinished and decks are incomplete. Thousands lined the waterfront to cheer as the luxury ship came up the harbor into the Hudson under conditions so different from the maiden voyage of the Queen Mary, which holds the North Atlantic speed record of 3 days, 21 hours and 48 minutes.

At the Queen Elizabeth's pier, a heavy police detail was on guard and no one was permitted on the pier unless he possessed the proper credentials. The liner was brought to America for safekeeping and its owners were determined to see that it will be unharmed.

The Queen Elizabeth, except for making a spectacular maiden trip that was unrivaled for sheer courage and defiance of German submarines, mines and bombers, established no other records on its epic trip.

COST $23,750,000

Given a rousing send-off when it left Clydebank, Scotland, on Feb. 26, the news of which was not released by British censors until yesterday, the $23,750,000 pride of Britain's merchant marine slipped quietly down the Clyde river to Greenock, Scotland.

Then on last Saturday, its engines churning and its crew aware of the importance of the task at hand, the luxury liner started its history-making 3000-mile ocean dash.

Unquestionably a substantial number of British battleships provided a safe convoy until the "blackout" Queen Elizabeth was believed safely beyond the menace of enemy attacks. Then, her engine running as rapidly as their newness would permit, the liner, its battleship gray blending with the horizon, zig-zagged toward its American sanctuary.

Late yesterday, when it was virtually safe within American territorial waters, British officials removed their strict censorship and let it be known that the Queen Elizabeth would reach New York very soon.

GREETED BY FLIERS

With today's dawn, airplanes soared over the Atlantic and sighted the luxury ship that would have been a welcome prize for any German submarine, about 70 miles east of the Narrows. As the first airplane, carrying an International News Service reporter, circled overhead, the Queen Elizabeth hoisted the red British ensign on her mainmast—the first outward display of her identity since leaving Greenock.

CAPT. J. C. TOWNLEY
In Command of "Queen"

Whether the ship carries guns was not known as none was visible on its decks from the airplane.

Her feat was comparable to that of the Nazi liner Bremen, which was caught in New York when the war broke out. Eventually, the Bremen stole across the Atlantic far to the north to Murmansk in Russia from where she finally reached Germany.

COAST GUARD ESCORT

Coast Guard cutters were ordered to escort the Queen Elizabeth up the Hudson to the Cunard pier where detailed precautions were taken to protect her.

Aside from the fact that her great bulk silhouetted against the English skyline made her an easy target for raiders, other considerations moved the British to send her to the safety of New York harbor. It was believed the insurance costs of keeping her at home were exceedingly high and that her presence in the River Clyde impeded the increased wartime traffic there.

How 3 Largest Liners Compare

NEW YORK, March 7 (AP)—The statistical comparison of the three greatest ocean liners taking refuge in New York harbor:

Queen Elizabeth—85,000 tons, 1030 feet long, 118 feet wide; cost, $23,750,000; still incomplete.

Normandie—83,423 tons, 981 feet long, 117 feet wide; cost $60,000,000; completed 1935.

Queen Mary—81,235 tons, 975 feet long, 118 feet wide; cost, $25,000,000; completed 1936.

The Queen Mary Holds the transatlantic record of 3 days, 21 hours, 48 minutes; average, 30.99 knots.

Rumania Backs Army to Hilt On Neutrality

BUCHAREST, March 7 (AP)—King Carol II opened Parliament today with a declaration that all the resources of Rumania would be thrown behind her army as a "supreme guarantee of our independence and of the integrity of our borders."

Disclosing that taxes would be materially increased to bear the cost of keeping 1,600,000 men under arms, the monarch said:

"I am sure my people will accept such sacrifices for the sake of the country and peace."

Strict neutrality, he declared, will be continued even in the fields of foreign commerce "in order to assure the essential flow of supplies to our army and our people."

Sunken Dutch 'O-Boat' Raised; No Sign of 3

DEN HELDER, The Netherlands, March 7 (AP)—The Netherlands submarine O-11 was raised today by the three derick ships 26 hours after being rammed and sunk by a tugboat in the Nieuwe Diep.

Rescuers heard no signals from the two warrant officers and a cook who were trapped in the craft. The remainder of the crew of 30 reached safety soon after the accident. The submarine was towed to a berth to be pumped out.

WELLES CALLS ON LEBRUN

PARIS, March 7 (AP)—President Albert Lebrun, on behalf of France, a vowedly determined to crush the present German regime, received Sumner Welles at the Elysee Palace today.

A company of the Republican Guard stood smartly to attention as the automobile bearing President Roosevelt's emissary rolled into the courtyard.

Welles immediately entered Lebrun's office for a ceremonial visit before going to the war ministry to see Premier Edouard Daladier.

Newspapers emphasized France's war intentions by recalling the nation's "mistake in thinking Germany was a nation of poets and philosophers despite the terrible proof of the World War and the rise of Nazism."

GUARDED BY POLICE

Earlier, upon his arrival in Paris from Lausanne, Switzerland, Welles was driven to his hotel in a bullet-proof automobile. When he received the press at the American embassy, two hours later, a police detail was posted outside the building.

Welles reiterated to newspapermen merely that he had "no proposals to make and no commitments to offer" for the United States government.

Receiving the American, British and French press corps in a body, he warned that he had adopted a Lausanne newspaper's description of him, "mute as a carp."

WILL KEEP SECRETS

He repeated assurance given in other capitals that nothing one party tells him during his trip will be referred to "directly or indirectly" in talks with other parties.

Answering a question, he said he intended to draw no comparisons for publication on effects of the war in various countries he visits and that he will make no visit to the war zone in France.

Welles greeted French newspapermen in French and chatted easily with them in their language. United States ambassador to Great Britain, Joseph P. Kennedy, who accompanied Welles from Lausanne to Paris, left later by plane for London to arrange details for Welles' visit to the British capital on Sunday.

Von Ribbentrop's statement was made at a reception for Yugoslav journalists. He added, however, that Germany was prepared for a five-year war.

New Labor Board Urged in House

WASHINGTON, March 7 (AP)—Prompt creation of a new three-man labor board to act "merely as a judge" in collective bargaining disputes topped a list of 17 amendments to the Wagner Act recommended to Congress today by a House special committee.

Freedom also for an employer "to discuss labor situations with his workers" within limitations was included in the changes proposed by Chairman Smith (D.) of Virginia of the investigating committee. The committee majority advocated that the present board, headed by J. Warren Madden, be tossed out of office at this session.

HEALEY FIGHTS CHANGE

The minority, Representatives Healey (D.) of Massachusetts and Murdock (D.) of Utah, protested against the amendments as "emasculatory" and threatening to "the principles, purposes and objectives of the act."

The committee's amendments would:

1—Abolish the present board and create a new one of three members, with not more than two belonging to the same political party.

2—Separate the prosecuting and the judicial functions of the board and create a new office of administrator to handle many of the board's present functions.

3—Permit the board to function only as a judge, with the exception that it would continue to have the power to order a collective bargaining election.

4—Make mandatory the issuance of subpoenas for appearance at hearings upon request either of an employer, worker or union.

5—Permit court review of board decisions in representation cases.

6—Permit the board to initiate determination of collective bargaining units; only the employer or employee could request that action.

7—Once an election is held, forbid other elections in the same plant for one year.

8—Relax present prohibitions, to permit an employer to discuss labor situations with his workers, providing that discussion did not involve acts or threats of coercion, intimidation or discrimination.

9—Apply the usual court rules.

of evidence to all board procedure.

10—Provide that, in court review of any board decision, the board's findings would be conclusive if based on a preponderance of evidence and unless they were "clearly erroneous."

11—Revise the declaration of policy in the Wagner act so that the board would not be encouraged to "unionize" employees against their will.

12—Prohibit the board to reinstate any worker who willfully engaged in violence or unlawful destruction or seizure of property.

CHANGES BARGAINING

13—Revise the definition of the phrase "bargain collectively" so that neither an employer nor a union would be compelled to reach an agreement or make counter proposals. (The committee majority did not touch on the question of whether a signed contract was necessary to show good faith in collective bargaining.)

14—Provide that the intermediate report of a trial examiner become final, without any further board action, unless one of the parties to the proceeding took exceptions to it in 20 days.

15—Exclude employees of farm co-operatives from the act's application.

16—Prohibit the board to enter in any charge of a violation of the Wagner act more than six months after the violation occurred and decree that back pay could not be awarded to any worker for more than a six-month period.

17—Abolish the economics division, presently headed by David Sapofo.

Says Snow Workers Damaged City Parks

Damage to Boston Common and other parks and playgrounds because they were used as snow dumps after the recent blizzard was charged today by William P. Long, park commissioner, who blamed contractors and their trucks.

In a letter to George G. Hyland, public works commissioner, Long asked that all payments to contractors be held up until he has had time to make a thorough estimate of the damage.

Hyland replied that the 10 per cent of contractors' pay held by the city for 60 days under the law would cover the damage.

CHARGES DAMAGE DONE

The first two contractors were then paid off, 90 per cent of their total charges. The firms were the Ward Central Contracting Co. and John Deveney & Co.

Both dumped snow on the Common. According to the park commissioner, the parade ground on the Common has been badly damaged and the wire fence around the baseball field may have to be rebuilt as the result of contact with contractors' trucks.

The Common and other parks and playgrounds were thrown open to snow dumping purposes on orders of Mayor Tobin when he flew back to on Florida during the emergency.

Long was in Florida at the time and did not return to the city.

PAST 40?

And Growing Old Too Soon

Try Biodine

The Food Adjunct Tonic For Men and Women Past 40... AND WAKE UP AND LIVE!

Biodine is not sold as a cure-all for the thousands of middle-aged people who are not as young as they used to be. It is the purpose of Biodine to supply you with the Vitamin B₁₂ and Iodine, two food constituents that are needed by many men and women past 40.

Medical references show that a lack of Vitamin B₁₂ may be the cause of many symptoms due to incomplete diets and generally associated with early aging, such as: intestinal sluggishness, nervousness, and loss of youthful vigor, perhaps, and vitality. It is these symptoms of ill health that sometimes makes a man or woman look and feel 10 years older than he or she actually is. The United States Department of Agriculture's miscellaneous publication No. 275 shows that white bread, potatoes, milk and similar common foods contain very small quantities of Vitamin B₁₂.

You may need Organic Food Iodine as found in Biodine to help keep your glands functioning properly. The glands are dependent upon a sufficient supply of Iodine as a protection against abnormal glandular conditions that may be caused by a deficiency of this important mineral. Biodine supplies you with Iodine from a natural, organic source.

We feel so sure that you will enjoy using Biodine that we offer it to you on a MONEY BACK GUARANTEE. Buy Biodine for only $1.50 for only 10 days. If at the end of the 10 days you do not believe that Biodine has not helped you, the trial is Free. Return the bottle and get your money back in full. Mail orders sent post-paid.

him if he wanted to take a check. He said, "No, I want it in cash." So I cashed the check and gave the money to Mr. Connolly.

WAIVE THEIR RIGHTS

Both Noonan and Kelley waived their constitutional rights in giving testimony which might tend to incriminate them.

Questioned by Asst. Dist. Atty. Doyle Kelley testified: "I had a conversation with Mr. Connolly in the latter part of January, 1937."

"Mr. Connolly told me that certain expenses had been incurred in Mr. Connolly's 1936 election campaign and that various people were going to be asked to donate."

"He said certain people were going to be kept in the office and others were to be changed. He said in view of my rating, I was to be asked to contribute $300."

"I said I didn't have it and didn't know where I could get it. 'Connolly said I'd have to get it. 'I said I'd see what I could do. 'He asked me if I'd 'see' him on the following day. I said I didn't know."

"Next day I met Mr. Connolly in the clerk's office. He asked if I had something for him. He said, 'I'll see you downstairs.'"

PASSED OVER MONEY

"I saw him there. We were alone. I passed him an envelope with $300 in it."

Q (by Doyle)—What did Connolly say? A—He said, "Thank you."

There was general laughter in the courtroom at this juncture. Deputy sheriffs silenced the disturbance.

Q—How did you obtain the $300? A—I drew $200 out of a savings account and borrowed $100 from a friend.

Q—Did Mr. Connolly give you any further explanation about why were to contribute and who were not? A—He said those who were asked to contribute were going to be kept, those not asked were to be let go.

EMPLOYEES CHANGED

Q—Did you subsequently observe any changes in personnel among the employees in Mr. Connolly's office? A—I did.

Kelley testified he had a conversation with Connolly in April, 1939. Connolly acknowledged the $300 contribution, he said.

Q—In what way did he acknowledge it? A—He said, "You have already contributed $300. That will be deducted from the amount you will be expected to contribute for the 1940 campaign."

Baering Down On the News

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

When the census taker comes to a boarding house all questions will be divided into A and B:

A—How many bathtubs in the house? B—How many boarders in each bathtub?

A—Do you call Mutton 355 because you get it every day in the year? B—Do you swallow prime seeds so the landlady can't send them back to California?

A—When you dial a telephone number with a fork do you have to divide the answer by three? B—How many times can you send a paper napkin to the laundry?

There is a fine for not answering questions. There should be jail for asking them.

Letter to Juror Proves Problem

A personal letter, addressed to one of the locked-up jurors in the John Patrick Connolly-William T. Conway trial, occasioned a judicial conference in Suffolk Superior Criminal Court today.

Judge George F. Leary, Asst. Dist. Atty. Frederick T. Doyle and Defense Attys. Abner R. Sisson and Herbert E. Calahan discussed the problem of whether to open and censor the letter or ignore it.

Since the return address indicated the missive was written by the juror's wife, it was finally decided to ask her if she would object to having the note read by the court officers before being delivered.

MOTHERS FOR U. S. DEFENSE

Although opposed to sending American boys to fight abroad, not a single mother who has enlisted in the National League of Mothers of America has declared she would be against having her son fight in defense of his country.

Prepared to stand beside her boys in defense of their country, Mrs. Annie Alegi of 39 Hart st., Taunton, writes:

Recollection of the horrors of the last World War when the young men of America went overseas to fight for foreign causes and many not returning, prompts me to send my name in to the Legion of Mothers.

"I would not like to see the youth of America sacrifice their lives again for European countries. I have sons of military age and I certainly would not like to see them go across as the sons of other mothers did in the last war."

"I will sacrifice them to defend America and fight any invasion of this country, but not to cross the ocean to fight for foreign causes. I, too, will take up arms in defense of our beloved country."

The Legion of Mothers is open to all women who are American citizens. Merely sign pledge cards and mail promptly to Box 228, Boston, Mass.

Plunges 35 Feet Into Subway Pit

Plunging 35 feet into the Huntington ave. subway excavation, Herbert F. Rose, 36, of St. Botolph st., Back Bay, suffered injuries that proved fatal today.

Workmen found him unconscious at the bottom of the pit. City Hospital officials, checking on personal papers found in his pocket, located Pauline Gibson of Hemingway st., Back Bay, who identified him and was quoted by police as saying she is his fiancee.

MUCK MUCK

Dear Sir—I am surprised that you should see fit to soil the obituary of the late Dr. Karl Muck with a review of his alleged shortcomings. He was a great artist. HITLEE IS RIGHT.

(Ed. Note: Dr. Muck proved himself a great artist. The United States government proved him a philanderer, an undesirable alien and a scuffer at those whose adulation nursed his pride. Shortcomings as well as accomplishments are pertinent to any consideration and evaluation of life.)

MONEY MONEY

Dear Sir—The United States has a gold reserve of about 18 billion dollars. The United States is about 47 billion dollars in debt. The United States extracts 5 billion dollars in taxes from its people and can't meet its expenditures. The United States is lending 10 million to Norway, 15 million to Sweden, 20 million to Finland, 20 million to China, more to Poland and any other nation that asks. The United States is silly.

WARRING WE WILL GO

Dear Sir—I'll bet $50 with anyone, you to hold the stakes, that the United States eventually gets into Europe's war. I'm a traveling salesman and I've just returned from a swing into the Northwest, down the Pacific Coast and across the South, and in almost every big city I stopped there was some propagandist from abroad, masquerading as a lecturer, arousing the emotions of American citizens. These are some of the things I encountered: Mile. Eve Curie lecturing on "France and War." Count Potocki speaking on "Poland's Fight." Nurni and Mak doing the same for Finland. Britain's Duff Cooper and lovely Lady Diana claiming that this is our war, too. Lord Lothian talking on "England and Democracy." A dozen or so British authors soft-soaping us; Countess Eva Sparre, sister of Baron Mannerheim, rousing our ire against Russia; Anne Morgan, sister of J. P., dragging out all the old atrocity stories of 1914 in behalf of "Friends of France." The most terrific propaganda drive in history is under way right in our midst and we seem to like it.

70,000 Greet New Archbishop

CHICAGO, March 7 (AP)—Archbishop Samuel A. Stritch received a tremendous welcome from thousands of the faithful as he entered the city to become spiritual leader of the 1,400,000 members of the Catholic archdiocese of Chicago, the largest See in the United States.

The newly appointed Archbishop was escorted from the Union Station to the Holy Name Cathedral in a motorcade along Jackson Boulevard and Michigan ave. Police estimated that 20,000 persons gathered at the terminal, 30,000 lined the streets and 200,000 massed in and near the church, a total of 70,000. The Archbishop, accompanied from his old post in Milwaukee by three trainloads of Chicago clergy, traveled through a lane formed by 11 D. T. C. youths to a balcony in the Union Station. The crowd cheered. A dozen bands played. "Monsters" sang "The Star Spangled Banner," "Ave Maria," "Christ the King."

Frankly glorifying Britain's air defenses, "The Lion Has Wings," which opened yesterday on Trans-Lux screen, surprises by proving thoroughly interesting and genuinely thrilling.

Britain's first propaganda film of the second World War, the film has been made by Alexander Korda, with the co-operation of the British Royal Air Force. It deals with the front-page facts that have made real life in Europe today more fantastic than the maddest melodrama.

The Ministry of Information and the censors who previewed it slashed quantities of footage for fear of disclosing war secrets, but this has not interfered with the film's entertainment value. There is a tremendously thrilling quality about Britain's preparations for Britain's air attack on Kiel, showing actual shots of the raid and of the British planes participating.

But mirroring the English attitude these days, grim but occasionally grinning, Script-writer Jan Dairymple has sneaked a laugh where there and there to lighten up this sober business of war. There's the lad who boyishly wrote "One for Adolph" on the bomb he had arranged in its hammock. And the mother one who, when he found himself confronting a German barrage, dipped up with "Ere comes the Naneties!"

Absorbing are the sequences showing, for instance, the screen's first shots of the air force's central control room where military experts mark the exact position of enemy planes on giant maps and direct their own forces to them by radio.

There is a thin thread of story, involving principally Air Force Officer Ralph Richardson and his beautiful wife, Merle Oberon. But so thrilling is England's story of how she is prepared to defend her shores against the enemy that these two excellent performers are of necessity mere stooges.

George Beatty, crowning comedian who heads RKO Boston's new stage show, starting today is one of vaudeville's

most versatile performers

A comedian who is possessed of a good singing voice is rare enough but when he tops that with the ability to write his own material, b' t h songs and patter, you have

George Beatty
there. One of Beatty's classic stunts is his impersonation of an inebriated sailor rolling a cigarette

In second position on the bill are the "musical maniacs," Charles Gregory and Jules Raymon. These two get music out of anything—an inner tube, a rubber glove, and a host of other objects.

Others on the stage program will be Chester Fredericks with Gloria Lane in a "Salesmanship" skit; Lester Cole, radio tenor, and his Singing Debutantes, and Wool-

HOLLYWOOD, March 7—"Destry Rides Again" was a box office riot for Universal and they're going western again in a great big way with "When the Daltons Rode." The Daltons, in their day, out-Jesse James'd Tyrone Power himself, terrorizing a former generation with their train robbing exploits.

George Marshall moves right back to Universal to make the yarn. Let me tell you something about the purchase of the story: "U" bought it directly from the widow of Emmett Dalton, the only member of the five brothers who survived the famous Coffeyville, Kan., killings when the entire band was wiped out after attempting to hold up two banks at once.

The widow of Emmett lives in Los Angeles and to avoid any later complications in suits and so forth, Universal has signed her as the consulting expert.

Out on the M-G-M lot there is much talk about "The Stars Look Down," an English-made movie, which Louis B. Mayer bought on the cuff, so to speak. Written by Dr. A. J. Cronin, whose "The Citadel" won such praise last year, "The Stars Look Down" deals with the Welsh coal miners and is a sombre, stark drama of these men who risk their lives daily.

While there is a doctor in the story it does not deal with the medical profession as most of the Cronin novels do. Emlyn Williams, once a Welsh miner and more recently known as the author and star of the stage play "Night Must Fall," and Margaret Lockwood are starred. Negotiations are on to again bring Miss Lockwood to Hollywood. She was here briefly on the Paramount lot last year.

END RUNS SATURDAY

Closing Saturday night will be "Margin for Error," the Clare Booth comedy at the Plymouth, and "A Passenger to Bali," Eileen St. Joseph's play starring Walter Huston at the Shubert.

SPEAKING OF CLOTHES

Girls Design 'Em to Fit Personality

Job—Three girls design, make and model "personality plus" clothes . . . and here Virginia O'Connor is fitted by Sylvia Miller.

'Dynamic Garb' Changes Madame

Here's paxy-eyed Mary Colton of George Truist Brooklyn, who says she was inspired to invent the "dynamic dress" because so many women think well-dressed means being well-dressed.

It's that very reason she decided to give a woman's personality more an interpreted in first knowing her and then dressing her, no matter how she likes.

Miss Colton demonstrated with eye style technique the dynamic dynamics of lovely Virginia O'Connell of Brooklyn and famous Sylvia Miller of Brooklyn, that to really glamourize you.

"First talk to the subject and look her up. Later you dress her according to personality, fitting the woman. A stylist ought to listen to a woman's ideas before dressing her."

Miss Colton's dynamic dress is first created from the "fashion, sensitive response and manner of the client."

Housewives debutantes professional women and "just-to-called plain folks" come to Miss Colton's laboratory of loveliness.

The full of a dress-woman Miss Colton means nothing unless you KNOW you belong to the fold.

After all, that's dynamic talk itself.

PUBLIC OPINION in New England and throughout the nation must necessarily find great weight in the fact that the State of New York, acting through its elected Legislature, has declared unequivocally in opposition to a third-term for "ANY PRESIDENT."

This action was taken in the form of a concurrent resolution which was proposed by a DEMOCRATIC SENATOR, John J. McNaboe, of Manhattan, and which was adopted immediately and almost without debate by BOTH HOUSES OF THE LEGISLATURE.

The action is impressive because it serves formal and official notice upon third-term advocates and New Deal officeholders at Washington that Franklin D. Roosevelt's own State, of which he was formerly Governor, does not want a third term in the White House for even Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Practical politicians OUTSIDE OF WASHINGTON should be able to read the clear warning that New York has conveyed.

For if both Houses of the New York Legislature are so opposed to a third term for "any President" as to declare themselves in opposition this early in the 1940 campaign, where can New York's ninety electoral votes be expected to go next November, on a third-term issue, except in the anti-third-term column?

If Congress has the courage and the independence to act favorably on the New York resolution, the way to do so is not difficult.

The right way is to dispose of the third-term question forever by referring it to the people.

Let Congress—as the Hearst newspapers have advocated—submit at once to the forty-eight States of the Union a Constitutional Amendment which will DISQUALIFY "any President" from seeking or obtaining a third term.

THE BROOKLINE ELECTION contained many interesting contests, none more dramatic than "Man vs. Robot."

This rivalry resulted from the use of a mechanical ballot tabulator in Precinct Six as an experiment.

Despite unusually heavy voting in that district, the "robot" came up with the final figures 36 minutes after the last vote had been cast.

In sharp contrast, one precinct, where ballots were counted by human hands, did not report until seven hours after the polls closed.

This would have amused the late Thomas Edison, whose first invention was an automatic vote recorder.

ECONOMY AND CHARITY have at least one common property, believes the Boston Chamber of Commerce. Both ought to begin at home.

Acting on this belief, the Chamber congratulates a committee of the national House of Representatives for its stand in favor of economy with regard to rivers and harbors, and at the same time rebukes organizations which demand Federal frugality on the one hand and the largest possible allocation of funds for their particular localities on the other.

Theoretically, the Chamber is right. It is hypocrisy to say, "Let the rest of the nation economize; give us all we want."

But actually the Chamber is ignoring the important fact that Massachusetts and New England, despite this area's urgent need for flood control, have not fared so well under the New Deal as have States in the South and West.

For instance, for every dollar North Dakota paid into the Federal Treasury during the past year, that State received approximately THIRTY-TWO DOLLARS in return.

WHEN A NEW ENGLAND RIVER OVERFLOWS
Adequate Flood Control Would Prevent This Loss

Massachusetts, on the opposite end of the receiving line, was the recipient of 90 cents. Ten cents of every Bay State dollar that went to Washington STAYED THERE. Rhode Island recovered 80 cents of each dollar, and Connecticut only 50 cents.

Adequate flood control, which a more generous repayment of our own money might have given us, is a necessity in New England. We cannot afford to risk a duplication of the disaster of four years ago.

On the Side

HOW SOON will results of forthcoming census be known? Will the citizens be told before election day how many persons are unemployed? In Russia a complete census was taken in one day. Seems astonishing at first glance; but then if everybody can vote in one day why couldn't a census be taken in the same time? ... Most annoying minor ailment is a cold in the head. A cold sore is second. This department does not consider a tooth-ache a minor ailment. That's real trouble. ... Many men smoke a pipe because they think it makes them seem an intellectual type. Those fellows buy a pipe as a female does a hat. They try it before a mirror to see if it is becoming.

IN 1903 passage from Europe to the United States was ten dollars. In that year 857,046 immigrants were admitted to the United States. In Siam if a woman reaches 30 without getting a husband she can demand the government supply her with a mate. There's a bit of a catch in this because the government supplies the unmarried woman's demand by taking a bachelor from jail and ordering him to marry the spinster. ... DRAMATIC SCENE IN "WHAT PRICE GLORY?"
Columnist Asks: Why Hasn't This Film Been Revived?

to puzzle you. I would like to know ... Why hasn't "What Price Glory" been revived? This could be quite a contribution to the cause of peace. Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, March 7—Because I had to take a train at Raleigh, N. C., I arrived at the White House Monday morning almost at the same time as did my guests, the Reverend and Mrs. Endicott Peabody, and Mrs. Louis Howe. I found my mother-in-law, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wilson from Hyde Park already there. At 9:30 I started on a busy day.

First I held a press conference to which I had invited Mrs. William Kittie, Chairman of the District of Columbia Minimum Wage Board. She represents the public on the District of Columbia board of three—one member represents the employees, one the employers, and the third one, the public. She gave a very clear description of how the minimum wage law has affected women in the District of Columbia, and answered two questions which have always bothered me.

ONE is, does a minimum wage law throw a great many women out of work? Here in the District, in such occupations as are fairly well organized, the employment of women has increased since the law passed, but in a few of the badly organized occupations such as laundry, cafeteria and hotel workers, there has been a very slight decrease in employment.

The other question which is often asked, is whether the minimum wage becomes the maximum wage and means that few people ever get better pay. Mrs. Kittie was able to show from studies made here that women who had formerly been receiving more than the minimum wage still receive higher pay, and a far greater percentage than ever before are receiving the amount set as the minimum wage, whereas formerly they had been receiving less than the present minimum wage.

It looks to me, therefore, as though this was working out very well in the District and should work equally well in other localities.

WE ALL WENT to St. John's Church across Lafayette Square for the service which my husband always liked to have on the anniversary of his first inauguration day. One prayer which was read made a deep impression on me. I did not happen to know this prayer before, and I think it is one which many of us would be glad to say many times, so I am giving it to you here in full:

"Our Father, Who hast set a restlessness in our hearts, and made us all seekers after that which we can never fully find; forbid us to be satisfied with what we make of life. Draw us from base content, and set our eyes on far-off goals. Keep us at tasks too hard for us, that we may be driven to Thee for strength."

"Deliver us from fretfulness and self-pity; make us sure of the goal we cannot see, and of the hidden good in the world. Open our eyes to simple beauty all around us, and our hearts to the loveliness that men hide from us because we do not try enough to understand them."

"Save us from ourselves, and show us a vision of a world made new. May Thy spirit of peace and illumination so enlighten our minds that all life shall glow with new meaning and new purpose; through Jesus Christ Our Lord."

BARRYMORE SHUNS
SUMMONS

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK, March 7 John Barrymore, who has been trying to avoid process servers, broadcast for George Jessel's radio program. He left the studio with Jessel and they both walked down the street. . . . A young man suddenly ran up to them and shouted: "I've been waiting a long time, but at last I got you this time, Mr. Barrymore" and served the summons—on the startled but non-protesting Jessel. . . . Jules Leventhal, the producer who has helped J. B. Priestley's "When We Are Married" to survive, at one time had as many as 25 stock companies working in small cities throughout America. Twelve years ago, when Clifford Odele was an actor, he went to Leventhal, confessed that he needed a job—and was offered one for $35 a week in a theater in Union City, N. J. . . . "But I can't do it on $35 a week," Odele protested. "How'll I live?" . . . "Wonderfully," the producer assured him, "Union City is a very nice quiet place. The people are nice there. And with $35 a week you'll live comfortably with no headaches, no worries—it's the ideal way to live" . . . Odele met Leventhal again last night. "It took me 12 years to find out," Odele confessed, "that you're right."

ALICE FAYE

MORITZ ROSENTHAL, the pianist, gave a benefit recital in Los Angeles, where he met Darryl Zanuck. The 78-year-old pianist was cynical about Zanuck's assertion that he was planning to make biographical films about some of the great men of music. Rosenthal has known personally—including Wagner and Liszt. . . . "I'll bet you $10 I can tell right now what such a picture would be like," Rosenthal scoffed. "Don Ameche will be Liszt, and he would be unsuccessful as a composer until he met Alice Faye. Then she'd happen to hum a tune which gives him the idea for the Hungarian Rhapsody" . . . Zanuck handed $10 to the pianist. . . . "So you admit I was right?" gloated Rosenthal. . . . "No," said Zanuck, "but the idea's worth $10."

THE PRESS announced revival of the Ku Klux Klan in New Jersey, and photographs of the Klan meeting were taken by Ray Howard. . . . Klan officials studied Howard before allowing him to enter. He then was permitted to take his photographs, while orations were made against Catholics, Jews and Negroes. . . . Howard started to drive away, then returned to the meeting place and searched around the floor. "Lost something?" the Kluge asked him. . . . "Thanks, I've found it. Here it is," Howard finally told the Kluge, and held up for all the Klan to see his Rosary beads.

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY: Ed Gallagher, Sr., of Brighton, former president of the L. S. M. City Council and father of Jimmy Roosevelt's popular Boston representative, Ed Gallagher, Jr., will be president of a local race track now in process of re-organization. . . . Xavier Cougat, the rhumba-man, will open the spring-summer season at the Ritz. . . . The Ritz opening will be earlier this season—and that is not the best of tidings for the year-round nightclubs. . . . Senor Cougat was introduced to this section at the Ritz in 1937. . . . His climb to the top of the heap of tom-tom and gourd bands dates from that engagement.

COBINA WRIGHT, Jr., currently in Boston as the heroine of a farce called "Worth A Million," will probably be a Ritz attract on this season—a repeat engagement. . . . one of those coincidences which play such an important part in show-business has made Cobina, Jr., a partner to an interesting collaboration. . . . Among those invited to the party given by Cobina's mother Sunday was Irving Actman, Lita Gray Chaplin's accompanist and song-writer. . . . Mr. Actman is one of the best accompanists in the trade. . . . He and Cobina got to chatting and Irving made a few suggestions to the charming young singer, and her mother.

ONE WAS THAT COBINA should use an opera aria as part of her repertoire. . . . The next day, the two kept a date and Miss Wright went through the trials of the "Madame Butterfly" aria. . . . Mr. Actman enthused. . . . Well, it's a new partnership. . . . When Lita Gray Chaplin left town last night, Mr. Actman went along as her accompanist. . . . But he and Cobina have a date next month in New York, and a verbal pact has been made. . . . They will appear together when Cobina keeps a late spring engagement at the Waldorf-Astoria.

ANOTHER "ON THE SPOT" BOOKING occurred as the result of Miss Wright's visit to Boston. . . . With Cobina and her mother at the Mayfair after the premiere of "Worth A Million" was Sigrid Lassen. . . . Sigrid is a pretty blonde, and is being tutored in voice by Mrs. Wright (who used to be a singer, and a good one, herself). . . . Sigrid is also said to be the daughter of a Princess of a McCoy line of royalty. . . . The princess' daughter must have made a hit with someone. . . . She is making her debut at the Mayfair tonight. . . . Miss Lassen's engagement is to last throughout the Boston tenure of Cobina's show, "Worth A Million."

ALMOST TO THE MINUTE when the notion dawned on this department that the story of Seabiscuit and Jockey Johnny (Red) Pollard had the real-life makings of a thrilling scenario, the same idea amote David Alexander, the mighty mite of the associated turf-writers, a bang on the thinking-cap. . . . David got down to work and went into the striking similarity of the Fates endured by The "Biscuit and his rider for about a column and a half in The Morning Telegraph. . . . We neglected an item which David, who

CAPRA WILL FILM
"DON QUIXOTE"

By Louella O. Parsons

Frank Capra

HOLLYWOOD MARCH 7—Frank Capra, a pioneer of the period and costumed characters in Frank Capra's best movie sellers, The Capra plays are famous for touching on current topics and subtly presenting a sociological trend, but they have always been modern. Maybe that's why he's decided to do something entirely different after he finishes "The Life and Death of John Doe." He and Robert Riskin are writing "The Life of William Shakespeare." They have also prepared a script on "Don Quixote." And both of these will be the Capra pictures.

"Don Quixote" is a story of chivalry, was written in the 16th century, by Miguel de Cervantes. It was produced in the movies long ago with DeWolf Hopper playing Quixote, but it has never been made into a picture. I really would like to see a Capra version of "Don Quixote." The first character whose name has been lived through the centuries and whose very name has been synonymous with chivalry.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD The Ray Millands welcomed a boy yesterday. Ray had expected a girl and had chosen the name Victoria. Well, Victor will do as well. Olivia de Havilland and Lew Ayres a most surprising twosome doing a play. Penny Singleton and her producer, Bob Sparks, together again at the "My Son, My Son" preview. Greg Bautzer, the young Margaret Rouse, and very attentive, too. Sinclair Lewis has taken himself to Victorville to write a play.

LETITIA FAIRBANKS and Reginald Gardiner a Ciro twosome following the preview; Jane Winton and Michael Gottlieb, her bridegroom, guests of honor at a large party. Jane has been much wined and dined and herself gave a farewell party last night; Sonja Henie and Dan Topping, chaperoned by her brother and his wife, at the El Mirador in Palm Springs. This is the most serious of Sonja's romances, if I am any judge.

ALEC TEMPLETON imitating Charlie McCarthy's voice so well that Edgar Bergen, who was lunching with him at the Brown Derby, was astonished; Patricia Dane and Rudy Vallee have definitely said farewell. She was at Ciro's with Bill Joseph and Rudy was merry-making at the Grace Hayes Lodge with Lorraine du Bois. Also at the Lodge were Kelly Anthony and Frances Robinson.

TWO-MINUTE STORY

MR. OTIS pressed his foot a little more firmly on the accelerator. Thoughts of a well-cooked dinner and the memory of successful days were enough to make any man hurry home. His wallet bulged with receipts and his notebook showed new orders.

Maybe, he explained later, it was this "all's well-with world" feeling that prompted him to pick up the stranger.

"Care for a lift?" he asked genially, bringing the car to a stop.

This startled the stranger, but no more than it did Mr. Otis himself. For years he had scorned "hitch-hikers" and told people so, proudly.

"Mighty nice of you," smiled the young man gratefully. "Not many folks are willing to take a chance with strangers."

"Well, . . . er . . . I know a thug when I see one," smiled Mr. Otis lamely.

"Do much driving, sir?" inquired his guest.

"Yes, I'm in the selling game. Cover about a hundred miles a day."

THEY DROVE ON, chatting casually, when suddenly the shrill note of a police whistle interrupted the conversation. Mr. Otis jammed on the brakes.

"What's this?" he exclaimed, obviously annoyed.

"Check up. Let's see your papers," answered the officer.

Mr. Otis, fumbling through pockets which yielded the license, remembered with sinking heart that the registration was this very minute, buried in the depths of his wife's handbag.

"Report back here tomorrow morning," growled the policeman.

"That's fine!" ejaculated Mr. Otis. "Come back tomorrow! Knocks a whole day all to pieces!"

"Say! Maybe I can fix it up right now!" offered the young man. "Give me your license."

WONDERING what influence, if any, the young man had, Mr. Otis handed him the paper and watched him walk back to where patrolmen were halting all cars. Sooner than he could have hoped, they were on their way again.

"How did you do it?" grinned Mr. Otis.

"You'll never hear from this now," answered the young man, holding up a handful of papers. "Here's that cop's reports. I didn't tell you my business, did I? I'm a professional pick-pocket."

Mr. Otis gulped. Instinctively he felt for his wallet.

LISTEN, WORLD! By Elsie Robinson

"YOU'RE ALWAYS," sneers he, "telling people to go after things and they'll get them. . . . quoting Scriptures at them. . . . telling them it's up to them to get what they want out of life. But you know as well as I that old 'seek and ye shall find' stuff is the bunk!"

Guess again, Stranger. The bunk? Y are wrong! If there's anything certain in this muddled business of life it's the old promise—"SEEK AND YE SHALL FIND: KNOCK AND IT SHALL BE OPENED UNTO YOU."

I admit I once thought it was the bunk myself. I'd grown up, as most of us did, believing that every word in the Bible was "gospel truth." Then I tackled life—As is—and everything I'd ever trusted seemed to go blooey.

ASK! SEEK! KNOCK! I didn't do anything else but! Yet did I get what I asked? Did I find what I sought? I DID. . . . NOT?

To the contrary, it seemed as if some Arch Demon were taking special pleasure in thwarting my wishes, making things even harder for me.

At first I concluded that the trouble lay in my asking. Maybe I didn't know the right way to seek. So I prayed harder and longer—telling God, what a tough spot I was in.

Did THAT do any good? Not a darn bit! Life became even cusseder—impossible. And was I mad!

WHAT THEN? It's a long story—with no new chapters. Every human who has ever cared to live at all knows each page of it. Years of discouragement.

Then one day an amazing idea occurred to me:

"Ask and it shall be given you . . . seek and ye shall find. . . . knock and it shall be opened unto you."

I had believed those words so implicitly! I had thought them a practical working rule for life. And they had failed me. OR HAD THEY?

I began to look back at life—My Big Chances—one by one I traced them to their source, and I saw, amazingly, that they had never seemed big changes at first.

Instead, many a time they had seemed to be actual hardships—pesty obligations which I peevishly met. Yet, in the end, they became the great "answers" of my life, the great adventures.

And I wondered again—HOW MANY CHANCES HAD I LOST BECAUSE THINGS DIDN'T COME AS I HAD PLANNED? And how many other lives had been wasted, simply because they wouldn't accept opportunities unless they fitted some private pattern of their own?

You Can Be Beautiful

Hair Nourisher We All Need

By ARLINE GOULD
WE TOLD YOU not long ago about a cream wave-set that sent us into rhapsodies, and also about a wonderful cleanser for your hair, to use between shampoos. Hundreds of requests came in about both of them, and we were thrilled to pass along information about these really grand products.

They represent a firm famous for their hair and scalp knowledge and the tremendously effective treatments given in their salons all over the country.

HAIR TONIC INCLUDED

Since we wrote, a marvellous new kit has appeared in a Boston department store. It contains not only both these wonder-workers, but in addition a bottle of their superb hair tonic... and all for a one-dollar bill! Oh, and also a jar of their swell pomade.

In case you didn't read our raves, this cleansing preparation is a lovely liquid that keeps your locks soft and lustrous... and fragrantly clean... and makes it possible for you to have shampooes far less frequently than you otherwise, for the sake of lustrous, would have. This is wonderful for your hair and scalp, and a dandruff-chaser of marvellous effect.

The pomade does for your scalp what a tissue cream does for your skin. It is a corrective cream for such ailments, a nourisher that supplies the oils which keep your locks young and beautiful.

THREE TYPES

As for the hair tonic you may have your choice of three types, one for dry, oily or normal hair. (The men in the family will raid your dressing table for this.)

And as for the wave-set... well, you'll have to use it to appreciate its glamorizing qualities. No goopy muck, no flakes or anything falling on your shoulders, no stiff, knife-edged waves. 'S wonderful.

We shall gladly tell you where to get this kit, which will keep your hair in shining order and glowing health if you call L.B.erty 4943 weekdays, except Saturdays, or write, enclosing a stamped and self-addressed envelope.

Manners

Telephone Courtesy

By MRS. BEECKMAN

Most of us, when we telephone, consider only what is happening at our end of the wire. It is convenient for us to telephone at that minute, and we don't stop to think or to ask if it is convenient for the person at the other end of the wire. It is outrageously thoughtless to start in on a long telephone "visit" with no thought of the other person's convenience.

We have no way of knowing about the convenience of our call, except to ask. And ask we should, immediately. "Is it convenient for you to talk with me a minute?" or "Are you too busy to chat with me?" or, "Am I calling at an inconvenient time?"

This courteously gives the person called the opportunity of saying, "I'm sorry I am just dashing out to keep an appointment, but may I call you this evening?"

Then there is the especially thoughtless person who telephones during meal hours with nary an inquiry as to "Are you at dinner?"

And when we say we will call back in fifteen minutes or at 8 o'clock, or any other time we specify, we should remember that the other person is waiting for our call and we should keep our word about this telephone appointment.

Love and Marriage

Loves Fiancee's Pal Now

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

A certain young man was in love with my best girl friend. Before he met me they had an understanding that they would be married as soon as he could afford it.

Now he has told me that he doesn't love her anymore, but that his affections have turned toward me, and he wants to stop going with her.

He calls me on the phone and sends flowers and candy. I'm very much in love with him, but how can I break the news to my girl friend? Or do you think it's all right to do it, or shall we just let her find it out for herself? I shall be anxiously awaiting your answer.

D. W.

In these days, no sensible person is supposed to go on with an engagement when love no longer exists.

Decidedly it's the young man's place rather than yours to tell the girl he no longer loves her. It wouldn't be the right thing at all to let her find it out for herself. But she may have her suspicions, as love and a cold are hard to conceal.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:
She seems to enjoy my company and treats me awfully though she refuses when it comes to going out with me. What would you suggest is the best way to persuade her to go places?

PERPLEXED.

With almost the entire sex "rarin' to go" this lady must have her own reasons for clinging to the hearstone. If she belongs to a church, how about suggesting she let you go with her to some of the church entertainments? As an entering wedge, you might suggest a movie at one of the suburban theaters, if her idea of declining to go with you is that she doesn't want the neighbors to know she's "keeping company."

Souffles Always Popular

By MARTHA LEE

Between the blustering cold days of winter and the lazy warm days of spring, comes the month of March. It's an in-between month that calls for a change in meals. Most families welcome a main dish that's a little different from the roasts and stews they've been having. But they're not yet ready for salad plates and picnic-style meals.

So if you're trying to tempt jaded end-of-the-winter appetites, check up to make sure you haven't been neglecting any of the possibilities. Eggs are down in price now, so it's an especially good time to plan meals around them.

GOLDEN-BROWN SOUFFLES

Eggs are the chief ingredient for any kind of a souffle—with either a thick white sauce, or bread crumbs, or both as the binder. Usually a souffle that contains bread crumbs holds up better than one made with white sauce alone.

CHEESE SOUFFLE

1/2 cup butter
1/2 cup flour
1 cup milk
1 cup grated American cheese
1 tsp. salt
1-2 tsp. paprika
1/2 tsp. mustard
4 eggs, separated

Melt butter and stir in flour; gradually add milk and cook about 5 minutes, stirring constantly until mixture thickens; add cheese and seasonings, stirring until it is melted, and remove from heat. Gradually stir in well-beaten egg yolks and fold in stiffly beaten egg whites; turn into greased casserole or baking dish and put in pan of hot water; bake in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) for 50 to 60 minutes, or until delicately browned and firm to touch. Serve at once. Garnish with parsley, if desired. Makes 6 servings.

LIVER SOUFFLE

1 1/2 cups milk
1/2 cup dry bread crumbs
4 tsp. butter
1 cup cooked ground liver
1/2 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. pepper
2 egg yolks, beaten
2 tbsp. chopped parsley
2 egg whites, beaten stiff

Heat milk, add crumbs and cook to a thick paste. Add butter, liver and seasonings. Remove from fire and add well-beaten egg yolks and parsley. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Place in well-buttered baking dish and bake in moderate oven, 375 deg. F., 20 to 25 minutes.

Long, slow cooking is one of the secrets of making a perfect souffle. In a modern oven the air bubbles in the egg whites will expand and the mixture will set without becoming tough. When a souffle is made with bread crumbs as a binder and is baked in a moderate oven, there's no danger that it will fall. But a souffle is always best when served as soon as it comes from the oven.

A fluffy, golden-brown souffle is hard to surpass. Or, if you're in a hurry, omelets offer another excellent way to use eggs. Cheese, flaked fish, vegetable pulp, or ground meat can be added to either the souffle or the omelet to make them worthy of their ranking as main dishes.

PUFFY OMELET

4 eggs, separated
1/2 tsp. salt
Dash of pepper
1/2 cup milk
1 tbsp. butter
Parsley

Beat egg yolks until thick and light; add seasonings and milk; fold into stiffly beaten egg whites. Turn into buttered, hot 9-inch frying-pan or omelet pan and cook over heat for 3 to 5 minutes, or until omelet puffs up and is browned on bottom. (Test by raising edge of omelet with spatula.) Place in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) for 10 to 15 minutes, or until top springs back when pressed with finger. Cut about 1-inch incisions at opposite sides and crease down through center in line with cut; then fold carefully on creases by slipping spatula under half of omelet to fold over. Slip onto hot platter and garnish with parsley; if an omelet pan is used, merely fold over; omelet will shrink slightly when removed from pan. Serve at once. Makes 6 servings.

PAROLE

A Complete Short Story
Daily on This Page

By DENIS
MORRISON

IT happens that I'm the assistant district attorney who sent Jonathan Whipple to prison. It wasn't a job I liked. The deeper I delved into Whipple's case the slimmer grew the devious trail involving others, men prominent in the community.

I won't say Whipple was innocent. He was guilty, guilty as a sheep-killing dog with a mouth full of wool. But he wasn't alone in his guilt. He took the rap, and he took it with his chin up, while men just as tarred as he snarled at him vengefully—and gradually drew their ill-got gains out of hiding to wallow in luxury.

The thing that surprised me was Whipple's release on parole. The aggregate of his sentence came to something like forty years. Financiers who proved unfaithful to their trusts were not popular with juries back in the depths of depression. Despite the fact that I prosecuted him successfully, I felt friendly toward Whipple, an extraordinarily able chap, and on a number of visits to San Quentin I made it a special point to have talks with him. The warden also took a keen personal interest in Whipple and soon promoted him to a confidential clerkship.

The hush and cry over Whipple's release on parole did not die down for two or three weeks after he had left San Quentin. One evening my phone rang and the voice on the other end of the wire was Whipple's.

"I'm hiding out up in the mountains," he told me. "Could you drop by? I'd like to clasp a friendly hand. It—hasn't been easy since I got out."

I told him I'd be tickled to death, of course.

I found him living alone in a cabin on the slope of the mountain leading up to Elg Bear. Whipple's wife and kids were still in the East. The suspicion wouldn't dawn that Whipple had come away with a large portion of his stealings. After painstaking investigation I was satisfied that Whipple had not saved a cent out of the crash.

After we had settled down to talk, I said:

"Well, Whipple, what do you think you'll do? Try a comeback amid your old surroundings?"

"No, much as I'd like to."

"I've got a job. Yes, a good one. Traveling auditor for a big corpo-

The Cast of Characters in "Parole"

AN ASSISTANT DISTRICT ATTORNEY who tells the story of J. WHIPPLE, convicted by the former's efforts but later paroled through the efforts of E. J. DALTON, who formerly frowned on Whipple.

"No one can foretell what the parole board will do," he told me. "If we can keep your hearing quiet there will be a good chance. If we can't—I understand Dalton's sworn to keep you in here until you die. He's a dangerous enemy. But I'm going to make sure your health is right for anything that may happen. I want you to shake that prison pallor, get the old spring back into your step, the old color back in your cheeks. Whipple, I believe in you—and I don't want you facing the board looking like a shaking invalid. I'll go against ous time when six or eight months of no moisture turns the earth, densely grown with underbrush, into a gigantic firetrap.

SMOKE!

"We cons were busy planting new trees in some sections, building fireguards across the summits in others. One Saturday I got permission to try a bit of fishing in a sickly stream that hadn't dried up entirely. I left camp by myself early in the morning. It was a bright, warm November day. I did not realize how far I'd tramped until I was miles from camp. And then crawling up toward the brow of the next hill, I saw it. Smoke! A thin, narrow, curling wisp of with fluffy hair almost golden. She was scared to putty, moaning and unaware that she was only about half dressed.

I grabbed blankets off the twin beds. Luckily there were plenty. I doused the blankets in water, soaked them. E. J. was almost as scared as the girl. He came up with a suitcase.

"Better not bother trying to save that," I told him.

"But he held on to it like grim death."

"I wrapped wet blankets around their heads, wiped one blanket apart and fastened it round the girl's feet and legs with rope. I looked out and saw the roof starting to blaze. I waited until I saw a kind of path burned through. Then I shoved E. J. ahead and picked up the girl."

"Well, the fire-rangers were on the job by the time we got down toward the valley. By that time E. J. was all in and I had to drag him too. We got into a C. C. C. truck and were hauled to the nearest first-aid station. I'd like to have a picture of E. J.'s face after I got washed up."

THE "RIGHT THING"

"Whipple!" he exclaimed. "You!"

"Yes," I said. "I see you saved your suitcase, E. J."

"He stared at me hard. He'd been burned around the head. The girl had disappeared. He went away and after a while came back and handed me a package. It was the roll of bills I showed you."

"I guess you owe me your life, Whipple," he said.

"I guess you do, all right, E. J."

I agreed.

"I'm going to do the right thing, never fear. The Governor owes me a favor. Of course, Whipple, I can rely on your discretion?"

"About the blonde? I never saw her, E. J. Besides, you'll remember I always liked your wife."

I did the rest of my time in hospital. Yes, I was burned worse than the others, I guess. When my release papers came I was just barely able to sign them.

The wife and kids will be back next week and we're sailing for Batavia, Java. The wife says she prayed a lot and I guess she did. I thought you'd be interested in hearing the queer way it all worked out. Reminds me of that old quotation about how Providence works in strange ways and so on. Doesn't it you?

THE END

"You'll enjoy Alissa Keir's thrilling story on this page tomorrow. The title is 'It Just Isn't Fair.'"

She was young and pretty with fluffy hair, almost golden. She was scared to putty, moaning and unaware that she was only about half dressed.

ration. In the Orient where no one ever heard of me—I hope."

"Congratulations." And I meant it.

"Here's the kick. The chap whose recommendation clinched this job for me—you couldn't guess who."

"No."

A STRANGE TALE

"E. J. Dalton."

"E. J.—why, man, you can't mean it." E. J. Dalton's voice had been the loudest of those clamoring to give Whipple the limit. No wonder I was astounded.

"It's a queer sort of story, old man. That's why I asked you up here, to tell it to you."

"The warden was pretty friendly to me up in San Q. I think you knew that, I've suspected you had a part in it. When the time drew near when I'd be eligible for parole he'd call me into his office.

you. And if the board's verdict is thumbs down—you'll be better able to take it."

"That's how I happened to be sent with a gang of trusties to the honor camp in San Bernardino mountains, a country I knew and loved."

"Word trickled through to me of mass meetings held in the old home town when talk of paroling me came up. It heard about E. J. Dalton going to Sacramento to protest to the prison board against my release. I smiled. Even the bitterness had gone from me. In prison, if a fellow faces it right, I've learned that it's possible to look higher for comfort and consolation. No, I wasn't bitter even at E. J. He didn't know it but I pitied him."

"The mountain work did wonders for me. I slept like a log, ate like a horse, lived in the open air. The forests of pine and scrub cedar were kinder-dry, the danger-smoke. Beneath it an infant flame barely beginning to show. I ran. I had to rush downhill, cross a ravine and then climb. But I knew that my chance was slim."

"I slashed with my small axe. No use. I stopped and picked up the glowing butt of a cigarette. Rouge stains on the tip. I cursed and went on slashing."

All of a sudden like a cry penetrated my consciousness. The scream of a woman. I stopped slashing to listen and then I heard a man's voice too. From up above somewhere. "My face was blackened and grimy from smoke. No wonder I wasn't recognizable. Up there is a small clearing close to the summit of Bird's-eye Peak. I found a cabin. Smoke and flame hemmed it in. I wrapped my coat around my head and plunged through."

A man was there and a woman. The man was E. J. Dalton and the woman was not his wife. I knew her. She was young and pretty

Auto Gossip

By OTTO SCOOPS

Lend an ear, Mr. Auto Dealer, business is on the upswing. Nation wide dealer sales of new cars last month eclipsed those of the previous year by 25 per cent. 40,000 new cars were turned out in February and mid-month estimates were more than 10 per cent out of the way.

Although a newcomer to the business we admire the way Miss Eliza has grasped the idea of things as secretary to Mr. Henshaw at Noyes, Eliza... Hy Richman, Dave Kasef and Jack Sheehan, dining the redecorated showroom at Amory Motors. Harry Paul of Paul's Tires seems full of regret because he didn't extend his two-week sojourn in Florida to motor the Harold Gaunt of Crandall Hicks reports an unprecedented influx of motorcycle business for this time of year.

"I ad" Heffron at Arthur Coombs Co. has two wideawake auto salesmen sons in Jim at T. C. Baker's and George at Coimbs. The latter Buick. We understand that Max Cohen has been doing an outstanding job at Packard Motor since his recent return. Dave Bowman and Larry Sawyer of Columbia Auto Paint have developed a new slant on painting that they plan to unveil this spring. Al Arto's general manager at Cypress Motors, tells me that the firm can't employ who smoke and talks so much is named Henry Oshry. ... Coudiere Corner Chev. is now heading into the winds of favorable business under the strong command of Manager Moulton. Now that Charlie Batcherfield of Hatchfield's Watertown Pontiac has seen his place cleared of snow he expects to start hitting his usual sales quota. ... The entire sales and executive staff of Oakley Motors literally rolled up their shirtsleeves, removed the snow from their vicinity but with a vengeance.

We'll compare Harold O'Neill's kindly disposition and pleasant demeanor with another dealer who has a big heart. ... Dick Drane, he of the blazing red hair at Blue Hill Pontiac, is a newcomer to the auto game but sells with the expertness of an old hand. The Cohen and Harry Davis, two kind fellows, have left Chevrolet and are expected to begin business at 82 Plymouth's Buick-Hudson outfit. ... fit-Franklin Field Motors.

The charming new secretary at Piloton Motor Sales, De Soto-Plymouth distributor, Somerville is none other than Miss Virginia Jarvis. ... Walter Cross, well known Boston auto salesman, has joined the sales force at Bowman Pontiac, Cambridge. ... Wm. C. Sawyer, Broadway Chev. Corp., Somerville, about the guys and gals to a Hotel Manger banquet the other evening. ... All 30 car Chevrolet 6-cylinder motor equipped with expensive Hamilton watches at Stierler Hotel Tuesday.

Ted Brady, the human dynamo of Stilphen Motors, would need an adding machine to keep count of his personal acquaintances. "Chilly" Lewis, youthful executive at E. E. Wadsworth's, is fairly itching to get at his golf clubs again. ... And Sports came too soon for Joe Brodigan. There's a certain beat that he owns which is a beauty. Boston's finest Chevrolet dealer is John Delaney and there's no mystery about his success. Honesty and sincerity, the golden rule are his keynotes. ... Dan MacDevitt, busy as the proverbial bunnies, is involved in business and politics and doing them well at his Highland Chev. establishment.

Ed Flood of North Quincy Garage maintains his own position whether it be March winds or April showers. George M. Freedman, successful Dodge-Plymouth salesman of the Malden Auto Exchange, has just been appointed gen. mgr. of the firm. ... Baltimore Motors, Malden Chrysler-Plymouth dealers, will hold their 2nd monthly meeting of the entire staff this week. ... Mrs. Frank Egan is recuperating at home after a recent appendectomy.

Mr. Egan is Mr. at H. H. Co., ... Harold Robinson, Porter Sq. Chev. Camb., is anxiously looking forward to his forthcoming annual vacation upon the return of the other half. ... The busiest auto merchant we know is George Baldoia, Cambridge DeSoto-Plymouth dealer. George never finds a dull moment.

AUSTEN LAKE

Five-Minute Tour Of the Golden Horn

SARASOTA, Fla., March 7—There are three methods of travel between Sarasota and St. Petersburg, (1) the roundabout road that threads like a concrete ribbon past tobacco and citrus groves to Tampa and thence over the three-mile Gandy Bridge, (2) by humpbacked, antique ferry and 65 miles of spinal massage from vibrating engines across an onyx-green bay, and (3) by airplane hack service and take-off from the hummocky field opposite Ringling's winter quarters.

AUSTEN LAKE

Shortly after sunup our duck-bellied, slender-winged amphibian waddled out and trained its motors in gusty snorts—a fragile, silvered dragon fly of a ship that looked distressingly frail for touring the sky. Gathering headway through the weedy patches we cleared the telephone wires and circled over the sun-drenched circus—its low-roofed stalls and horse corrals, the rail-heads with lines of brightly painted coaches, the canvas-jacketed parade wagons, the gray storage houses and lofts where the aerialists train.

Nearby lay a Negro prison colony with tin-covered, wooden barracks and black and white striped felons with chains riveted to their ankles. Several white men in slouch hats stood around, one with a rifle in the hollow of his arm watching the prisoners move with spraddle-legged awkwardness—short terners who repair the roads and clear the snake-infested underbrush as precaution against fires.

Ah! what the Terrace Hotel where the Red Sox dwell is the Tin-Can tourist's camp a permanent parking spot where a motorized fleet of some 600 families live—vans, trailers, buses, lorries and tow-carts in which people vagabond up and down the land, pausing a little while before mousing on. Across the way is a big-top tent where concessionaires are readying for Sara de Sota's carnival—a gawdy, goofy charivari of four days when people wear rubber noses, gay costumes and blow paper snakes or shower each other with confetti.

We level off at 1000 feet and scud over Bradenton to the Boston Bees, where the pilot screws around in his bucket seat and stabs a suggestive finger downward to where the Bees ball park lies with its rambling shacks and sandy patches. The pilot slopes the nose of his sky-flier and dives blammingly, zooming while the pin point faces of the ground-keeper's crew gaze, shielding the sun from their eyes.

The same dun-colored cows are grazing beyond the centre field fence, the same clubhouse laundry hangs on the line, the same be-draggled palm trees and sun-blasted stands. Life from our height seems at a standstill.

We are high over the land now and soaring across miles of green orange and grapefruit orchards, spaced in mathematical rows and bearing bright fruit like Christmas tree spangles. The tips of the trees are yellow and winter-killed from last January's freeze. Miles of celery fields have been abandoned or plowed back to the soil. Normally generous nature has been unkind.

Far to the left in a pine jungle the turpentine trees are burning and sending up spirals of whitish-blue smoke with a core of rosy flame. The tall trees are sweating their inflammable juices, dropping liquid fire on the palmetto undergrowth and spreading fury to their neighbors. The plane's silver wings shiver in the updrafts and your safety belt tugs at your middle. Nauseating sensation!

We are over water now, the pearl green waters of Tampa Bay, the wooded shores of Manatee County with its edgings of silver beach and the estates of wealthy residents where there are tropical gardens in the thick of wilderness woods. A white yacht with a needle sharp prow slices through the sea, leaving a wake of radiating ripples.

The plane swoops low, skimming the water at 50 feet and, looking down into the shadowed depths one sees flirts of fish tails and sometimes a dodging emudge which suggests something sinister with sharp teeth. A few small boats idle on the surface with sun-scorched men at the end of long silken lines, fishing for the marine curiosa which lie underneath and sometimes dragging up finny hobgoblins of the deep. A region of artificial June; a heady, giddy land of premature summer, a country which jills the senses, a lotus eater's paradise.

A gray hulk of a coast-guard cutter steams lazily South, white

RED SOX PLAY FIRST GAME

Reserves Much Better Than in '39

By HERB FINNEGAN

SARASOTA, Fla., March 7—The Red Sox will play their first intra-squad game here today, and it has become increasingly evident during the past few days that the Yannisians, with stable pitching, will give the Regulars all they want in the way of competition.

RED SOCKER—Ulysses Lupien, ex-Harvard captain, smites one mightily in the Red Sox Sarasota haven. Lupien, a great college batter and first baseman, may be a year from big league rank, but he's rated a sure-fire future ace.

Bay State Bets $222,449,288 Since 1935

A total of $222,449,288, was bet on horse and dog races in Massachusetts since the inception of pari-mutuel system in 1935, according to the annual report of the state racing commission, issued today.

The state's share of this amount was $9,960,715.

The amount of money bet last year was $41,643,796 of which the state's share was $1,855,547.

The peak year was 1938 when $48,991,863 was bet. The state's share that year was $2,154,676.

Bill Schuster In Bees Fold

BRADENTON, Fla., March 7—Bill Schuster, rookie Bees' infielder that starred for Toronto last year, arrived in camp today and immediately signed his contract. Schuster, who is the sole support of a large family on the coast, was given permission to report late that he might finish up his work in one of the electric factories where he was employed.

Schuster, who aspires for a short stop berth, played 133 games last year and batted for .263. He will be used as a substitute for Eddie Miller during the coming campaign.

Here are the probable starting lineups:

REGULARS	YANNISIAN
Cramer, cf	Carey, 2b
DiMaggio, lf	Nonnenkamp, lf
Williams, rf	Finney, cf
Fox, 1b	Spence, rf
Cronin, ss	Irwin, 3b
Tabor, 3b	Peacock, c
Owen, 3b	Campbell, 1b
Doerr, 2b	Lupien, 1b
Lacy, c	Seiling, ss
Heflin, p	Brazie, p
Walter, p	Harris, p
Fine, p	Sayles, p

That may not be the exact batting order, Joe Cronin not having made his mind up definitely this morning, but one can tell from the batting practice lineups that Williams will bat No. 3 this year and Fox No. 4. A year ago their positions were reversed.

SHOULD AID MORE

Whether that will hinder Williams in his attempt to repeat his trick of leading the league in runs-batted-in remains to be seen, but it would seem that the No. 4 man is in a better spot to drive in more runs than the No. 3 man.

But that's beside the point. Nor is it the point that Cramer is listed for center field duty instead of DiMaggio, as the winter book had it.

The point is that the Yannisian lineup contains the names of some pretty fair ball players, especially if Tabor starts for the Reds and Owen comes over to the youngsters' side.

HAS BETTER RESERVES

And that means that the club will be far better off in the matter of reserves than they were starting the 1939 campaign.

Let's look the situation over: One year ago the Sox had Berger and Carey as infield spares. This year they have Owen and Carey. Owen is an established major league, competent bat player at any infield position, including first base, which post he held down for Detroit in the 1935 World Series after Hank Greenberg injured his thumb in the second game.

FINNEY SHOWS VALUE

Owen is so far ahead of Berger that there is no comparison. Berger never was able to hit, and never will learn to hit, as Leo Durocher will find out this season. But Owen, the most valuable player in the International League in 1932, hit .317 for Detroit in 1934, .263 in 1935, .295 in 1936 and .288 in 1937, playing as a regular third baseman.

Carey, former Brown's second sacker, is a slick fielder, fast and

Bruins Leave for New York With Hill Sidelined Home

With Mel Hill sidelined, the Bruins left for New York this morning determined to ring up their seventh straight victory over the Americans tonight at the Madison Square Gardens and take first place away from the idle Rangers.

The unexpected loss of Hill will "hurt" no little but the "Rossmen hope" to continue their hex with general handyman Flash Hollett filling in at right wing with Bill Cowley and Roy Conacher.

Hill took quite a physical beating from the Red Wings Tuesday night, and yesterday, the doctors discovered that he had aggravated the groin injury which put him out of commission for two weeks in January.

NEED HILL FOR RANGERS

There is an outside possibility that Hill would have felt well enough to be some action tonight but Manager Art Ross refused to take any chances with his frail but brilliant right winger.

Hill lacks the ruggedness of several of the others and if he was lost for the coming Rangers series next week, it might mean the difference between first and second place.

Mel, however, will be back in uniform Saturday night when the Bruins entertain the Americans for the last time this season.

Just how the Cowley line which has outshone the famed "Kraut line" for the past two weeks will function without Hill tonight is not known, but Art Ross feels that the B's have enough general all-around strength to move than hold their own with the "Old Men of New York."

SHORE MAY PLAY

"The only troublesome point is that Eddie Shore may play against the Bruins for the first time in his brilliant hockey career.

There is no doubt but that Shore would give the Americans a terrific lift and make them all the more dangerous.

But the Bruins are out to take tonight's game, for a win puts them one point ahead of the idle Rangers. The Bruins can even afford a loss tonight and still win out, provided they split with the Rangers.

If they should whip the Americans in both games and down the Canadians, the Bruins could lose one and tie the second game with the Patrickmen and still come home on top.

In the semi-final Yvon Robert whipped Tom Casey, 15:04.

Both the Gympies and La Crosse Ramblers were victorious in their opening games of the basketball season, opening the final series for the Quebec Provincial Senior League championship last night.

At the first game, the Gympies defeated the Ramblers 21 to 17 at the North Station rink. La Crosse came from behind to win St. Hubert 11 to 9 in the end.

A crowd of about 1000 was on hand as the badly crippled Gympies won the first game of the season.

Both in the first and after the four minute break of the opening period, La Crosse Ramblers boys were better. They were clicking to such an extent that the referee had to stop the game at 10 minutes to the opposing net to fix the balling realized what was going on.

When the game was over, the Ramblers were 11 to 9. The Gympies were 11 to 9. The game was a close one and the referee had to stop the game at 10 minutes to the opposing net to fix the balling realized what was going on.

Curly Desrosiers opened the scoring in the first. Bud Foster, Junior Stubbs, Junior Allen and Johnnie Fitzgerald added the other four points in the middle session.

N. E. AMATEURS GUN FOR BROWN TROPHY

Gene Driscoll and his New England boxing committee have lined up a first class offering for New England fight fans at the Garden, Monday night, when the grand finals of the 1940 New England A. A. U. championships will be staged.

Bouts will be held in all eight classes at championship weights, flyweight to heavyweight.

Every one of these ambitious lads will not only be striving to win a New England championship but also by his performance catch the eye of the selection committee when the "George V. Brown Trophy" is awarded to the outstanding performer of the evening.

From the showing of our New England simon-pure leather tossers on Monday night a team will be selected to represent New England in the National A. A. U. Boxing Championships, to be held at the Garden on April 8, 9 and 10.

The featherweight class should be a sparkler with Sieve Kronis, 18-year-old South Boston lad who has been boxing but four months; Dick Shock, Hanover, N. H., 22-year-old laborer who has won 80 out of 100 battles in the last three years; William Daley of Roxbury, the 1939 New England All-America and Eastern All-America cham-and excellent team man. Joe Cronin thinks highly of him.

One year ago the Sox had Gaffke and Nonnenkamp as outfield spurs. This year they have Finney and Nonnenkamp.

Finney played 104 games last season and batted .310 after a poor start with the A's. You all remember the number of games he won for the Sox with his pinch hitting. And he's a speedster, too.

In addition, he can play a pretty fair first base as he proved last season when Jimmy Foss was out. Nonny can do likewise.

Behind the plate big George Lacey will help more than at first thought. And Desautels and Peacock are still around.

The fourth catcher here, Elton Deuse, is the property of the Rocky Mount club and will wind up either there or at Scranton.

He's only a kid, just out of Providence College but he can throw that ball with anybody in the league, and is a least on foot file.

The Sox will carry only five outfielders, so it is difficult to see how Stan Spence from Louisville will work. And it is unlikely that Tommy Irwin will be able to move Carey out of an infield spot. And with Owen, Finney and Nonny there is no need of carrying Campbell as a spare for Foss.

But, at any rate, the Sox will start the season better fortified behind the plate with Lacey, in the infield with Owen, and in the outfield with Finney, than they were last twelve months.

And that's something.

SEABISCUT AND JOHNNY POLLARD both are about to be fathers. . . . Their offspring are expected in the near future, and although The "Biscuit" has been a father before—the coming event will be the first of its kind in the life of the champion's courageous rider. . . . But alidlight which makes the co-incidence more interesting is the news vouchsafed by Mr. Alexander that Jockey Pollard has a share in the next Seabiscut foal. . . . What makes it tremendously interesting is that the dam of the expected foal is the hard-hitting mare Fair Knightess.

IT WAS FAIR KNIGHTESS which spilled Jockey Pollard at Santa Anita two years ago, and landed Johnny in the hospital with a broken collarbone. . . . The injury was not as serious as the broken leg The Red sustained a year later when Modern Youth threw him at Suffolk Downs in the course of a morning gallop. . . . But it was serious enough to put Jockey Pollard out of action in the Santa Anita Derby of 1937.

THE "BISCUT" was beaten by a lip in that race by Staghound, and turf sharps expressed their opinion that the defeat would not have happened had Pollard been in the stirrups. . . . Of course, if Seabiscut had won that race, part of the thrill of last Saturday's historic triumph would have been lacking.

TIP: There is a very, very, very funny man at the Coconut Grove. . . . He works under the name of "The Magician" and would have his watchers believe that he is a magician. . . . And for that matter, he is. . . . Of incomparably more importance, Mr. Gray is a comedian. . . . Magicians are plentiful here for comedians. . . . Name: Earl Lehr, Edgar Bergen, W. C. Fields, some of The Ritz Brothers and possibly Charlie Chaplin (the 1930 Chaplin) cause your correspondent to pull up short in discouragement at the futility of going much further.

uniformed sailors leaning on the rails, and far ahead lies the St. Petersburg waterfront, its tourist hotels alabaster in the sun, a creamy fringe that takes on color as you approach—amber, rose, buff, russet and greens. Now the seaport of the Vinoy Park Hotel passes beneath; the sponge-fleet tied to the municipal pier; the huge, sand-filled fun centre where elderly hellioptopes soak up actinic rays and play shuffle board; the banyan groves where graybeards ponder over chess boards; the sidewalks with mosaic colors; the streets with inevitable rows of green benches; the West Coast Inn with its galleried fountains and watercap tower.

We bank sharply over the ball park where the Bee-Braves used to train, so that we look down on fenced-in acres spread like an emerald handkerchief and on stands that are miniature match boxes. It is nearing 10 o'clock as we glide down past the dirigible barn with its Goodyear blimp half-hiding its sickled nose, bumping softly and taxiing down the central lane. The world suddenly seems real as one might emerge from an opium dream.

Bowling Classic On in Detroit

DETROIT, March 7 (AP)—The 40th annual tournament of the American Bowling Congress, a record-breaking affair even before the first ball rolls down an alley, opens a two-month stand tonight at the Fairgrounds Coliseum.

Bowlers from all parts of the United States and from far-away Hawaii comprise the entry list of more than 30,000 scheduled to roll before the close of the tourney May 7.

"This is by all odds our greatest tournament," said Elmer H. Baumgarten, A. B. C. secretary, as workmen put the finishing touches on the 40 alleys of polished maple. "We have shattered all records—marks that were just dreams a few years ago."

The list of 6073 team entries from 729 cities gave point to this remark. The previous record was the list of 4357 teams entered in the 1935 tournament at Chicago. The doubles event has attracted 10,328 entries, the singles 20,874.

Plan Fraternity House For Flatbush Dodgers

By BILL GRIMES

BRADENTON, Fla., March 7—Larry MacPhail doesn't care whose stuff he steals . . . He's announced that he intends to build a fraternity house for his Dodgers at Clearwater . . . When he was the Boss Man with the "Daffiness" boys from Flatbush, Bob Quinn hit upon the idea of erecting a field house with a training table at Orlando . . . He saw the light and returned to Boston before he could get around to carry out his plan.

After young George Metkovich had lost that decision to the fun on the back of a catfish, Casey Stengel came up with his best crack of the season . . . "This California boy went fishing with a Russian (Joe Antonick) and the Finn got him" . . . After driving from Sunset, Calif., with his wife and baby, DeB Garms did an about face and hiked for San Bernardino, Cal. . . Garms failed to notify Duffy Lewis that he had moved his winter residence from Wichita to Sunset . . . Had he done so, Garms would have been headed off before he started for Florida . . . Garms' trade to Pittsburgh has been in all the papers throughout the country, but apparently, they don't leave papers lying around trailer camps.

Jacob Simons, who came here with the first Boston delegation is spending a few days with friends in Miami . . . He hopes to catch up on his pinocle game . . . Jimmy Bibber, the East Boston boy who came to camp with Pat Rago, has acquired a deeper dark than any native . . . Jimmy and Pat are pulling for Joe Callahan to make the grade . . . And, it looks like they are on a scinner . . . Joe hasn't been bearing down very much, per orders of one Casey Stengel but he'll be ready when needed.

Dr. Bill Ross, Tommie McNerny, Andy Dazelle, John Corcoran, Arthur Murphy, Tommy Murphy, Frank Reynolds and Jim Barry, Red Sox Royal Rooters, came over from Sarasota to sit in on the Bees' Yarnigan games . . . A. S. Brown, Jr., who had much to do with the inception of the Salem Country Club, is in town . . . He has been in Miami, but prefers the East Coast . . . Ed Winslow, well known Texaco Southerly Club golfer is representing the North Shore . . . "Polo" Andrews' father and two brothers work for Ed Winslow.

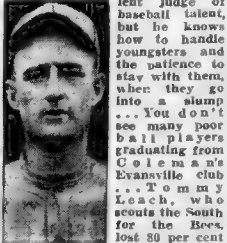

Manager Casey Stengel isn't interested in the Grapefruit League pennant . . . So during the coming exhibition games, which start next Wednesday with the Detroit Tigers, Ole Case will give all of his rookie opportunities to show him how they react under fire . . . When the thermometer gets down into the mid-40's it's really cold down here . . . Duffy Lewis is on the job 24 hours a day . . . In fact, he's been at the park but three times since he came to camp . . . On the other hand, Gabe Paul, road secretary of the Cincinnati Reds, has an assistant . . . Duffy says he's going to get himself one of these assistants just as soon as the Bees grab a pennant.

George Metkovich, the kid first baseman who was picked up by Casey Stengel when Judge Landis made the boy a free agent, quit high school a year ago to join the Beaumont Club of the Texas League . . . He returned to school last fall and received his diploma in February . . . George lives only two blocks from Bobby Doerr and is a great booster for the Red Sox second baseman.

Bob Quinn has always been a straight shooter with his ball players but when any "sugar bush" tries to put the gun on him, he burns up and literally takes them apart . . . Al Flechota, who has been kicking around sand lots and minor leagues since 1933 and was turned back by the Yankees, attempted to tell Bob Quinn how much he was worth to the Bees . . . If he's smart, Flechota won't make that mistake again . . . George Murphy, the Lewiston hurler, must be getting ready to retire from business . . . Instead of playing his usual "business" golf against Oscar Horton, George turned the heat on the Bees' treasurer and gave him a fine shellacking.

Bob Coleman is one of the most valuable assets in the Bees' organization . . . He's not only an excellent judge of baseball talent, but he knows how to handle youngsters and the patience to stay with them, when they go into a slump . . . You don't see many poor ball players graduating from Coleman's Evansville club . . . T o m m y

Doak

Tony Cuccinello Jr., caught a cat fish recently over at Sarasota . . . So he has something on any number of the Bees fishermen . . . It was "Chief" Weir, not Jesse Burkett, who discovered Al Javery, the fire ball rookie pitcher from North Oxford . . . Bill Doak, the old St. Louis pitcher, is operating a bowling alley in town.

Juniors Lose Two to 'Pics

Competition in the first annual Senior "B" National Championship of the United States Amateur Hockey Association at the Arenas tomorrow and Saturday is going to be quite keen before a ham plon is crowned.

A week ago the Boston Junior Olympics could have been rated as one of the outstanding choices to win the laurels but in view of the events of the past week they low rank only as another member of the field.

The loss of Ernie Garron and Johnny Fitzgerald to the senior Olympics is bound to affect the effectiveness of the "Junies." The "97" Club, the other Boston representative, also may find its path a bit difficult unless Johnny Garrison changes his mind and decides to play.

IT'S PROFESSOR NOW—George Lott, great Davis Cupper of other years, wears the mantle of teacher with aplomb as he shows a serious young Bermuda tennis scholar how to use her forehand. Lott wears glasses now, is a serious and successful tennis instructor, specializing on children between the ages and seven and 14.

Ohio Bookies Lose Phones In Bet Drive

CLEVELAND, March 7 (AP)—The Ohio Bell Telephone Co. gave police full co-operation today in an effort to stamp out gambling on horse races by removing telephones from 10 places described as "bookie joints."

President Randolph Eide said telephones would be cut off whenever police present information they are being used to promote gambling.

Safety Director Ed Nease said "the telephone company always has given us co-operation. This action will be of great help in stamping out illegal activity of bookmaking."

Bouts Last Night

(By the Associated Press)
CINCINNATI—Jack "Burr" Walker, 191, Columbus, knocked out Ed Murray, 216, Cleveland (7).

OSTY HOPES TO START SOX HILL WORK SOON

SARASOTA, Fla., March 7—Fritz Ostermueller, a sufferer from sinus and a cold in the chest, has been visiting a doctor in Tampa of late and is confident he'll be able to start work soon.

He's punched around face and far under weight. Cronin will not let him work until the doctor says it's O. K. because Joe remembers back in 1937 when Jimmy Fox came back to the game too soon, suffered a relapse and ruined his season. Jimmy had continued nosleds on the way north, and never was himself all year. He finished the season with a batting mark of .285, the worst in his career.

Emerson Dickman, who won 8 and lost 3 for the Sox a year back the while saving many other games, looks much bigger and stronger than he did last twelve-month. He's just 25 now, and attaining his physical peak. The board of strategy looks for him to have a great season. But still no word from his relief partner, Joe Heving.

Jim Tabor hasn't been doing any hitting because he almost lost the little finger of his throwing hand sawing timber a month back. The wound didn't heal properly because Jim's country doctor took the stitches out too soon. Van Green has the first in a split now, and Jim just wait until the splint is removed before he can take a bat in his hand again. He's in fine physical trim now, at 1-1-1 and straight as a Virginia fice. These Sox are a great lot, physically. Never saw guys on any one squad like those of Fox, Cushman, Tabor, Gockhouse, Lacy, Hersh, Dickman, et al. A football coach would like them.

The fourth catcher here, Elton Deuse, is the property of the Rocky Mount club and will wind up either there or at Scranton. He's only a kid, just out of Providence College but he can throw that ball with anybody in the league, and is a bearcat on foul flies.

The Sox will carry only five outfielders, so it is difficult to see how Stan Spence from Louisville will stick. And it is unlikely that Tommy Irwin will be able to move Carey out of an infield spot. And with Owen, Finney and Nonny there is no need of carrying Campbell as a spare for Fox.

But, at any rate, the Sox will start the season better fortified behind the plate with Lacey, in the infield with Owen, and in the outfield with Finney, than they were last twelve months.

And that's something.

Boston After Dark

is now in Hollywood, set forth for his readers, and now with his tacti permission, we're sure, we take pleasure in passing it along.

SEABISCUIT and JOHNNY POLLARD both are about to be fathers . . . Their offspring are expected in the near future, and although The Biscuit has been a father before—the coming event will be the first of its kind in the life of the champion's courageous rider . . . But a sidelight which makes the co-incidence more interesting is the news vouchsafed by Mr. Alexander that Jockey Pollard has a share in the next Seabiscuit foal . . . What makes it tremendously interesting is that the dam of the expected foal is the hard-hitting mare Fair Knightess.

IT WAS FAIR KNIGHTESS which spilted Jockey Pollard at Santa Anita two years ago, and landed Johnny in the hospital with a broken collarbone . . . The injury was not as serious as the broken leg The Red sustained a year later when Modern Youth threw him at Suffolk Downs in the course of a morning gallop . . . But it was serious enough to put Jockey Pollard out of action in the Santa Anita Derby of 1937.

THE 'BISCUIT was beaten by a lip in that race by Stagehand, and turf sharps expressed their opinion that the defeat would not have happened had Jockey been in the stirrups . . . Of course, if Seabiscuit had won that race, part of the thrill of last Saturday's historic triumph would have been lacking.

TIP: There is a very, very, very funny man at the Coconut Grove . . . He works under the name of Larry Gray, and would have his watchers believe that he is a magician . . . And for that matter, he is . . . Of incomparably more importance, Mr. Gray is a comedian . . . Magicians are plentiful. As for comedians—Naming Bert Laahr, Edgar Bergen, W. C. Fields, some of The Ritz Brothers and possibly Charlie Chaplin (the 1940 Chaplin) causes your correspondent to pull up short in discouragement at the futility of going much further.

BEAUTIFUL BLONDE BOWLER is Jean Dixon of Studio Academy who is entered in the Los Angeles Examiner's annual tournament. If pins fall for Jean as do the men, Mrs. Dixon should be getting a place ready for her daughter's trophy.

uniformed sailors leaning on the rails, and far ahead lies the St. Petersburg waterfront, its tourist hotels alabaster in the sun, a creamy fringe that takes on color as you approach—amber, rose, buffs, russets and greens. Now the sepi front of the Vinoy Park Hotel passes beneath; the sponge-fleet tied to the municipal pier; the huge, sand-filled fun centre where elderly heliotropes soak up actinic rays and play shuffle board; the banyan groves where graybeards ponder over chess boards; the sidewalks with mosaic colors; the streets with inevitable rows of green benches; the West Coast Inn with its galleried stouces and watercap tower.

We bank sharply over the ball park where the Bee-Braves used to train, so that we look down on fenced-in acres spread like an emerald handkerchief and on stands that are miniature match boxes. It is nearing 10 o'clock as we gently down past the dirigible barn with its Goodyear blimp half-biding its nickered nose, bumping softly and taxling down the central lane. The world suddenly seems real as one might emerge from an opium dream.

Bowling Classic On in Detroit

DETROIT, March 7 (AP)—The 40th annual tournament of the American Bowling Congress, a record-breaking affair even before the first ball rolls down an alley, opens a two-month stand tonight at the Fairgrounds Coliseum. Bowlers from all parts of the United States and from far-away Hawaii comprise the entry list of more than 30,000 scheduled to roll before the close of the tourney May 7.

"This is by all odds our greatest tournament," said Elmer H. Baumgarten, A. B. C. secretary, as workers put the finishing touches on the 40 alleys of polished maple. "We have shattered all records—marks that were just dreams a few years ago." The list of 607 team entries from 729 cities gave point to this remark. The previous record was the list of 4957 teams entered in the 1938 tournament at Chicago. The doubles event has attracted 10,395 entries, the singles 20,874.

New Rule Bars N.Y.U. From Garden Tilt

NEW YORK, March 7 (INS)—New York University's basket ballers today were prohibited by a new ruling from the athletic control board from participating in post-season games. This will keep NYU out of the national invitation tournament set for Madison Square Garden next week and also the N. C. A. A. tourney.

Plan Fraternity House For Flatbush Dodgers

By BILL GRIMES

BRADENTON, Fla., March 7—Larry MacPhail doesn't care whose stuff he steals. . . . He's announced that he intends to build a fraternity house for his Dodgers at Clearwater. . . . When he was the Boss Man with the "Daffiness Boys from Flatbush," Bob Quinn hit upon the idea of erecting a field house with a training table at Orlando. . . . He saw the light and returned to Boston before he could get around to carry out his plan.

After young George Metkovich had lost that decision to the fin on the back of a catfish, Casey Stengel came up with his best crack of the season. . . . This California boy went fishing with a Russian (Joe Antolick) and the Finn got him. . . . After driving from Sunset, Tex., with his wife and baby, D e b Garmes did an about face and hiked for San Bernardino, Cal. . . . Garmes failed to notify Duffy Lewis that he had moved his winter residence from Wichita to Sunset. . . . Had he done so, Garmes would have been headed off before he started for Florida. . . . Garmes' trade to Pittsburgh has been in all the papers throughout the country, but apparently, they don't leave papers lying around trailer camps.

Jacob Simons, who came here with the first Boston delegation, is spending a few days with friends in Miami. . . . He hopes to catch up on his pinocle game. . . . Jimmy Bibber, the East Boston boy who came to camp with Pat Rago, has acquired a deeper dark than any native. . . . Jimmy and Pat are pulling for Joe Callahan to make the grade. . . . And, it looks like they are on a winner. . . . Joe hasn't been bearing down very much, per orders of one Casey Stengel but he'll be ready when needed.

Dr. Bill Ross, Tommie McInerney, Andy Dazelle, John Corcoran, Arthur Murphy, Tommy Murphy, Frank Reynolds and Jim Barry, Jed Sox Royal Rooters, came over from Sarasota to sit in on the Bees' Yarnigan games. . . . A. S. Brown, Jr., who had much to do with the inception of the Salem Country Club, is in town. . . . He has been in Miami, but prefers the East Coast. . . . Ed Winslow, well known Tecoco Country Club golfer is representing the North Shore. . . . "Polo" Andrews' father and two brothers work for Ed Winslow.

Manager Casey Stengel isn't interested in the Grapefruit League pennant. . . . So during the coming exhibition games, which start next Wednesday with the Detroit Tigers, Ole Case will give all of his rookie opportunities to show him how they react under fire. . . . When the thermometer gets down into the midlows 60's it's really cold down here. . . . Duffy Lewis is on the job 24 hours a day. . . . In fact, he's been at the park but three times since he came to camp. . . . On the other hand, Gabo Paul, road secretary of the Cincinnati Reds, has an assistant. . . . Duffy says he's going to get himself one of those assistants just as soon as the Bees grab a pennant.

George Metkovich, the kid first baseman who was picked up by Casey Stengel when Judge Landis made the boy a free agent, quit high school a year ago to join the Beaumont Club of the Texas League. . . . He returned to school last fall and received his diploma in February. . . . George lives only two blocks from Bobby Doerr and is a great booster for the Red Sox second baseman.

Bob Quinn has always been a straight shooter with his ball players but when any "sugar bush" tries to put the gun on him, he burns up and literally takes them apart. . . . Al Piechota, who has been kicking around sand lots and minor leagues since 1933 and was turned back by the Yankees, attempted to tell Bob Quinn how much he was worth to the Bees. . . . If he's smart, Piechota won't make that mistake again. . . . George Murphy, the Lewiston hurler, must be getting ready to retire from business. . . . Instead of playing his usual "business" golf against Oscar Horton, George turned the heat on the Bees' treasurer and gave him a fine shellacking.

Bob Coleman is one of the most valuable assets in the Bees' organization. . . . He's not only an excellent judge of baseball talent, but he knows how to handle youngsters and the patience to stay with them when they go into a slump. . . . You don't see many poor ball players graduating from Coleman's Evansville club. . . . T o m m y Leach, who scouts the South for the Bees, lost 80 per cent of his fruit and onion crops during the "freeze."

Doak Tony Cucinello Jr., caught a cat fish recently over at Sarasota. . . . So he has something on any number of the Bee fishermen. . . . It was "Chief" Weir, not Jesse Burkett, who discovered Al Javery, the fire ball rookie pitcher from North Oxford. . . . Bill Doak, the old St. Louis pitcher, is operating a bowling alley in town.

Juniors Lose Two to 'Pics

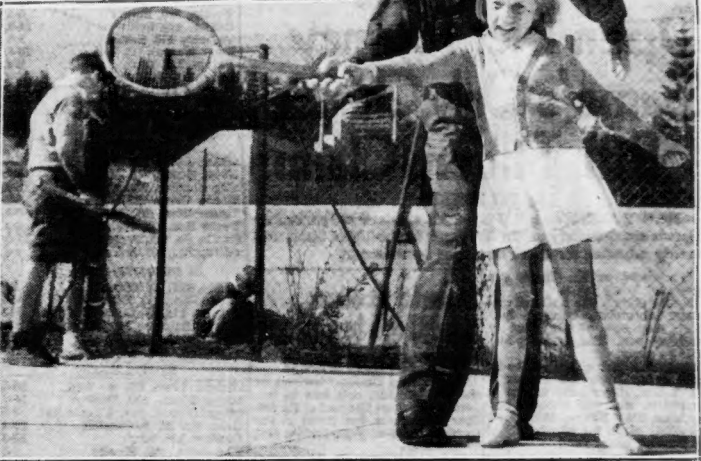

Competition in the first annual Senior "B" National Championship of the United States Amateur Hockey Association at the Arena (tomorrow and Saturday is going to be quite keen before a champion is crowned.

A week ago the Boston Junior Olympics could have been rated as one of the outstanding choices to cop the laurels but in view of the events of the past week they now rank only as another member of the field.

The loss of Ernie Garron and Johnny Fitzgerald, the senior Olympics is bound to affect the effectiveness of the "Junies." The "97" Club, the other Boston representative, also may find its path a bit difficult unless John Garlison changes his mind and decides to play.

IT'S PROFESSOR NOW—George Lott, great Davis Cupper of other years, wears the mantle of teacher with aplomb as he shows a serious young Bermuda tennis scholar how to use her forehand. Ohio Bookies Lose Phones In Bet Drive

CLEVELAND, March 7 (AP)—The Ohio Bell Telephone Co. gave police full co-operation today in an effort to stamp out gambling on horse races by removing telephones from 10 places described as "bookie joints."

President Randolph Eide said telephones would be cut off whenever police present information they are being used to promote gambling.

Safety Director Elliot Nease said "the telephone company always has given us co-operation. This action will be of great help in stamping out illegal activity of bookmaking."

OSTY HOPES TO START SOX HILL WORK SOON

SARASOTA, Fla., March 7—Fritz Ostermueller, a sufferer from sinus and a cold in the chest, has been visiting a doctor in Tampa of late and is confident he'll be able to start work soon.

He's pinched around face and far under weight. Cronin will not let him work until the doctor says it's O. K. because Joe remembers back in 1937 when Jimmy Fox came back to the game too soon, suffered a relapse and ruined his season. Jimmy had continued nosebleeds on the way north, and never was himself all year. He finished the season with a batting mark of .285, the worst in his career.

Emerson Dickman, who won 2 and lost 3 for the Sox a year back, the while saving many other games, looks much bigger and stronger than he did last twelve-month. He's just 25 now, and at the height of his physical peak. The board of strategy looks for him to have a great season. But still no word from his relief partner, Joe Heving.

Jim Tabor hasn't been doing any sitting because he almost lost the little finger of his throwing hand saving timber a month back. The wound didn't heal properly because Jim's country doctor took the stitches out too soon. Win Green has the finger in a splint now, and Jim must wait until the splint is removed before he can take a bat in his hand again. He's in fine physical trim, however, tall and straight as a Virginia pine. These Sox are a great lot, physically. Never saw physiquers on any one squad like those of Frazz, Cronin, Tabor, Galehouse, Lacy, Hash, Rutland, Dickman, et al. A football coach would like them.

AMATEUR BOXING in New England will reach a new peak at the Garden on next Monday night when the New England championships are staged in eight classes. The trial contests were held at the Arena, and they produced all kinds of thrills.

Gene Driscoll refers to Monday night's tourney as a battle of champions in view of the fact many boys who have gained titles in various ring contests this season will be seen in action.

Tony Peppi, flyweight, is the only New England defending champion. This means that the battles for the honors in the different classes will all be open ones, and boxers who have yet to win a sectional title will have an opportunity to do so.

Bill Weinberg, 22-year-old Chelsea heavyweight, will be among the boxers who will compete. Weinberg has looked impressive in recent starts, and expects to come through a winner.

Steve Kronis of South Boston, flashy featherweight, will also thrill the big crowd expected to be on hand for the Garden battles. Kronis won the State title, and believes he will go on to annex the New England championship.

Tom Kanaly reports that the 32 boxers who have qualified for next Monday night's bouts are busy training at local gyms, and that they will make stout-hearted bids for the eight titles.

National Title Bouts Here Next Month

THE NATIONAL amateur boxing championships will be held at the Garden early next month. The winners in the New England title tournament will be called upon to meet the best simon pures in the country.

"We have a fine lot of amateur boxers," said Gene Driscoll today. "I am sure that the youngsters who come through as champions in the New England at the Garden on Monday night will make a creditable showing against the class boxers of the country in the national championships."

"With Peppi the only defending champion in the New England, the competition is certain to be more severe. Every boy in the tournament knows he has a chance to leave the ring a champion. This will mean intensified action."

Amateur boxing always improves as the old champions either move into the professional ranks or retire. When there is an experienced amateur champion, it is natural that the average boxer will not enter a tournament. He feels he has little chance of winning. The situation changes when the champion steps into higher company and youngsters of about the same ability are permitted to battle it out among themselves.

Amateur Boxing Hope of Pro Game

AMATEUR BOXING is the hope of the professional game. During the past three years many graduates of the American-Record All-America tournament have made the grade in professional ranks.

Salvatore Bartolo, George Martin, Yancy Henry, Abe Denner and numerous other professional stars got their start in All-America tournaments. I understand that Al (Red) Priest, who recently went to San Francisco with the Eastern All-America team, is considering an offer to turn professional.

Priest lost a questionable decision to Jimmy Edgar of Detroit in the final of the 147-pound class in the Coast tournament. Priest is a good boxer, hits hard, and has the competitive spirit needed for success in professional boxing.

Short Fences Will Benefit Max West

MAX WEST WILL be one of the chief beneficiaries of the shorter outfield fences that are planned at National League Park. Max is a hard hitter, and with the right field wall nearer the batter's box, he will be able to get more home runs.

For years Bob Quinn fought against any thought of moving in the outfield walls. Quinn did not believe that ball parks should be shifted around so as to aid the batters. He believed people were interested in watching scientific baseball and that the desire to see home runs hit over short fences was only a fad that would soon die out.

The Bees won and lost many close games by one run margins. The depth of the outfield at National League Park enabled the fielders to play deep for those batters who get long drives.

If Jimmy Foxx and Joe DiMaggio had been doing their batting at National League Park during the past few years they would not have got so many home runs. They would have found outfielders parked under some of their most lusty drives.

Under the new order of things at National League Park, the Bees hitters will receive plenty of opportunities to bounce the little white agate off the outfield walls. It is hoped that enemy batters will not overpower the Bees in the matter of getting long hits.

The Braves once moved in the left and center field bleachers in order to increase home-run hitting. It was felt at the time that the Braves had men in their lineup with the necessary batting punch to clear the fences. Much to the surprise of the local management it was the visiting firemen who did the home run hitting. It was then decided to push the bleachers back to their original positions to save the local baseball situation from utter destruction.

I would not like to see such a disastrous end to the latest experiment in face lifting at National League Park.

Hartnett Dons Mask to Aid Finns

By the Associated Press

AVALON, Cal., March 7—Gabby Hartnett, the Chicago Cubs' veteran catcher-manager, is going into action sooner than he expected—all because of the Finnish war. He hadn't planned to play until the Cubs reached San Antonio, Tex., en route home, but agreed to appear along with eight other members of his team in a game at Los Angeles Sunday for the benefit of the Finnish Relief Fund.

ORLANDO, Fla.—The Washington Senators see a chance of reviving a deal with the Detroit Tigers that would send Shortstop Cecil Travis to Detroit for either Hank Greenberg or Rudy York now that Charley Gehring is ailing. The veteran Tiger infield star is suffering from a strained back.

CLEARWATER, Fla.—Whit Wyatt, hoping to recover from a knee injury and again take his place as a Brooklyn Dodger pitching stalwart, got a rough going over in yesterday's debut. In two innings he yielded nine hits and seven runs. Manager Leo Durocher said after the game, however, "I know Wyatt is all right and that he will come through."

ANAHEIM, Cal.—The Philadelphia Athletics probably are wishing major league pitching was like the variety they've faced in three exhibition games. They copped their third decision yesterday in a 12-3 17-hit spurge against Portland of the Pacific Coast League. With Frank Hayes still holding out, Earle Brucker was again the No. 1 catcher and contributed two doubles as well as a nice defensive performance.

TAMPA, Fla.—Vince DiMaggio

finally has satisfied himself why Paul Derringer of the Cincinnati Reds is a great pitcher. "Gee," exclaimed Vince, "he threw me a change of pace when I was ahead of him—two balls and no strikes."

SAN BERNARDINO, Cal.—That title of captain must have been just what Arky Vaughan of the Pittsburgh Pirates needed. He slammed a homer over the rightfield fence yesterday to lead Mike Kelly's crew to an 8-6 victory over Jake Flowers' nine in a six-inning intra-squad game. Ace Parker booted three of his seven chances as a shortstop and Rookie Bob Elliott injured an ankle sliding into base.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—Manager Ray Blades split the St. Louis Cardinals into two squads today for the first game of the training season, probably hoping the maneuver would take the players' minds off Joe Medwick's troubles. Meanwhile, both Medwick (in St. Louis) and the management waited for somebody to make the first move.

LAKELAND, Fla.—The Detroit Tigers are expected to start rookie

Dick Conger, Los Angeles policeman's son and ex-college star, on the mound against Brooklyn in their first exhibition game Sunday. Second Baseman Charley Gehring probably won't play because of a lame back.

FORT MYERS, Fla.—It might become confusing if continued, but the Cleveland Indians conducted their baseball practice yesterday on a football field. Their training diamond was flooded by an all-night rain, forcing the shift to other quarters. Manager Oscar Vitt contented himself with pepper games and calisthenics.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—The ghost of the last World Series reared itself in the New York Yankees' first intra-squad game. Lefty Lee Grissom, who was obtained by the champions from the Cincinnati Reds this winter, was pitching airtight ball until Charley Keller tripped with a man on base.

WINTER HAVEN, Fla.—Babe Young, still the fair-haired boy in Manager Bill Terry's plans for first base on the New York Giants, sprung a double and two triples in a camp game yesterday and right away the holdout stock of Zeke Bonura tailedpin. The game furnished another happy angle for the Giants, because Carl Hubbell made his first pitching start and worked three scoreless innings, facing only 11 men and allowing one hit.
